Thant-Red Cross Parley To Fix Cuban Inspection

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Acting Secretary-General U. Thant meets today with two leaders of the International Committee of the Red Cross—ICRC—to nail down details of a plan for the neutral agency to inspect Cuban-bound Soviet ships for arms.

The Red Cross committee disclosed in Geneva Monday it had received U.N. assurance that Prime Minister Fidel Castro would accept its inspection of ships heading for Cuba.

The committee said arms inspection was normally outside its sphere, but that it could consider lending its good offices to the United Nations as requested by Thant.

It said final agreement would hinge on the conference between Thant and Paul Ruegger, former committee president, and Paul Borsinger, secretary of the ICRC executive board.

The United States has agreed to the Soviet proposal to let the Red Cross check on incoming Russian ships. Washington indicated that if the plan went into operation, it would lift its naval arms blockade now ringing Cuba. Still unsettled, however, was the key question raised by Castro's refusal to let the United Nations, the Red Cross or any other agency conduct inspection on Cuban soil to make sure Soviet missile bases have been dismantled as promised by Premier Khrushchev.

U.S. sources stressed that President Kennedy's assurance that the United States would not invade Cuba depended on tearing down the bases and shipping the rockets back to the Soviet Union and on international verification that this had been done.

Within a day or so U.S. surveillance flights are expected to show whether the Russians are withdrawing the IL28 bombers which are capable of carrying nuclear warheads and have a 750-mile range.

The Pentagon was maintaining an almost complete blackout of news dealing with surveillance results.

Washington sources said there was some indication the work of unearthing the bombers has stopped. They said further surveillance will be necessary to show whether the Russians are withdrawing the planes under Soviet Premier Khrushchev's agreement to remove all offensive weapons from Cuba.

The informants said information reached Washington Saturday that while the Russians were dismantling the missile bases they were continuing to uncrate and assemble the estimated 20 or so IL28s shipped to Cuba.

President Kennedy was reported to have been highly concerned about the report which indicated Khrushchev might be hedging on his part of the crisis agreement.

On Sunday, according to the sources, U.S. representative John J. McCloy took up the matter in New York with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov.

McCloy was understood to have told the Russian the United States wants the planes as well as the missiles removed from Cuba.

McCloy was reported to have made plain that Kennedy's no-invasion pledge held good only if the Soviet Union followed through with its part of the bargain.

Kuznetsov repeated the Soviet premier's assurances that the offensive weapons would be removed from Cuba under international inspection, said the sources.

At the Pentagon Monday, almost every question on the Cuban situation was turned back with a "no comment."

Instructor Apologizes For Paddlings

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP)—A junior high school instructor who paddled more than 30 ninth grade students last Friday apologized to the school board Monday night and said he used "poor judgment."

The board deferred until Thursday a decision on demands by some parents that the instructor, James Posey, be dismissed. The paddling occurred, Posey said, after $2.57 apparently was stolen from his jacket during a gym class.

Posey told the students the whole class would be punished unless the money was returned. When it was not forthcoming, Posey whacked each student five times with a paddle.

Some parents who attended Monday night's meeting denounced Posey's action but did not demand that he be fired. School Supt. John E. Brown said he has enough faith in the instructor to state without reservation that a similar incident would not happen again.

Flight from Police Ends in Fatal Crash

UPPER SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—A Columbus man pursued by a highway patrolman was injured fatally Monday night in a head-on auto collision on U.S. 23 about four miles north of here.

Killed was George F. Wythe Jr., 23. A highway patrolman said he was attempting to catch Wythe, who he said was speeding, but the collision occurred before the patrolman closed the distance.

Wythe's car collided with one driven by Ralph J. Garrett, 37, of Jackson, Mich. Garrett, his wife and son were taken to Wyandot Memorial Hospital here.

India To Bring Home Troops Previously Loaned to U.N.

NEW DELHI (AP)—India plans to bring home its U.N. forces to battle the Chinese Communist invaders, a Foreign Office spokesman announced today.

Indian villagers will also be taught to shoot in the government's hard-pressed efforts to stem a Chinese drive that has overrun 2,000 square miles of borderland and thrust one spearhead into undisputed Indian territory.

India has troops with U.N. forces in both the Congo and the Middle East.

The spokesman indicated that withdrawal of India's well-seasoned brigade of 5,700 men from the U.N. Congo force may still be some time in the future, however.

He said India hopes to pull out this contingent as soon as an agreement is reached between the Congolese central government and secessionist Katanga Province. The two sides still seem far apart on Congo unity.

The spokesman did not say how soon the 1,250-man force serving in Gaza would come home.

He said plans for the withdrawal of the Indians, the largest contingents in both U.N. forces, had been brought to the attention of Acting U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant.

Girding for grass-roots resistance, Home Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said rifle training will be given to every able bodied person in mountain areas facing Red China. Later they will be equipped with small arms.

Usually reliable sources reported the Chinese have occupied an abandoned Indian military base that controls northern Ladakh, endangering the entire Indian position on the western front.

This meant that for the first time in the border conflict the Chinese have established their army in a part of India which the Peiping government did not claim previously.

The base, at Daulet Beg Oldi, was abandoned by Indian troops a few days ago because it had become impossible to hold that anchor of the Himalayan battle line.

At this point, Crawford said, a man ran out of Democratic headquarters and stuck a Democratic sticker on the back of a Republican girl.

"She protested, of course," Crawford said. "Then a gentleman stepped up to defend her and the two men really went at it."

A spokesman for the Democrats told this way:

A woman stuck a Republican sign on a Democratic headquarters window. A Democratic woman retaliated by pasting a "Vote Democratic" sticker on a Republican car.

A young Republican waved his "club-like" torch at the woman. A 19-year-old Democrat intervened and the two young men exchanged blows.

Police prevented further fighting. They also impounded the elephants.

Kremlin Hails Bulgar Reds

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP)—Bulgarian Communists now praise today from the Kremlin's top party theoretician for backing the "peaceful coexistence" foreign policy preached by Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Mikhail Suslov, the theoretician, also gave Moscow's approval for the purge of Stalinists from Bulgarian party and government posts, including Premier Anton Yugov and half a dozen others.

Suslov, head of the Soviet delegation to the eighth Bulgarian party congress, told the 1,055 delegates: "Under its capable leadership, the Bulgarian party has kept itself clean by its struggle against dogmatism, revisionism and sectarianism."

A significant factor in the Bulgarian purge was the ouster of Georgi Kumbiliyev, ambassador to Red China.

Early Vote Is Heavy; Ohio Record Predicted

Morning Voting in City Rolls Along at Brisk, Steady Pace

A noon survey of Circleville's 15 polling precincts indicated a heavier than usual turnout for today's election.

A total of 1,332 votes had been recorded by noon, considerably higher than the 506 cast during the morning hours at the May primary. It also is higher than the 824 counted by noon in the Nov. election of 1961.

Most precincts reported a steady flow of voters beginning at the 6:30 a. m. opening hour. Encouraged by crisp, but sunny weather, the stream continued on through the morning hours.

In view of the pleasant skies, predictions were that the heavy pace would continue on through the afternoon and until 6:30 p. m. when the polling stations close.

MAIN INTEREST on the local scene centered on the races for auditor, commissioner and state representative and the county-wide vote on the Berger Hospital building levy.

Viewing for the auditor post is incumbent Democrat Marvin Rhodes and Republican Lawrence Liston. The commission race falls between incumbent Democrat Charles Morris and Republican Wayne Hines.

Seeking the state representative seat are Ed Wallace, Democrat and Darrell Hatfield, Republican. Wallace is the incumbent.

The hospital proposal seeks a 1½ mill levy for a five-year period for improvement and expansion at the local institution.

Also drawing local interest are two issues seeking division of a current levy to provide funds for the Pickaway County Retarded Children's School and the County Tuberculosis Clinic. This proposal does not represent an increase in taxation.

Both the Logan Elm and Westfall School Districts are asking for renewal of operating levies.

REPORTING the heaviest vote at noon today was Precinct 1-G at Atwater School where the count was set at 168. Precinct 1-C at the First Methodist Church listed 153 votes.

The lowest noon count was Precinct 4-D at Walnut St. School where 30 voters had cast ballots.

Other noon reports from city polling places were as follows: 1-A, 73; 1-B, 68; 1-D, 109; 1-E, 50; 1-F, 109; 2-A, 111; 2-B, 101; 3-A, 76; 3-B, 83; 4-A, 39; 4-B, 67; 4-C, 95.

50 Million Votes Expected in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—An estimated 50 million Americans go to the polls today to cast ballots that may shape the destiny of President Kennedy's New Frontier programs and offer valuable tips on future leaders of the Republican party.

At stake: 39 Senate seats, all 435 House seats and 35 governorships.

Kennedy, trying to set a good example, is in Boston to vote in person.

The weatherman has cooperated with democracy by his prediction: generally dry weather for most of the nation, with scattered rain in the North.

If around 50 million turn out, it will be a new high for these off-year elections. The previous peak, set in 1958, was 47,854,000.

Since 83 million are qualified, no one will be bragging about the record. It's due more to a gain in population than to a more fervid interest in the nation's welfare.

Both sides wound up with the customary trumpeting about a certain victory.

But the final guess is that there will be no clear-cut victory.

This would be a fitting end for what has never been a clear-cut campaign, a battle that began chiefly over domestic issues but wound up under the cloud of the Cuban crisis.

The guessing: 1. Republicans may gain a few seats in the House, but nowhere near the 44 they need if they are to gain control.

2. Democrats may pick up a couple of seats in the Senate, but this won't help them much since they already have a 64-36 lead.

3. Republicans will get in their hardest, and most lasting, licks in the chase for governorships. They are favored to win 19 races, the Democrats 16.

If these predictions are true, then after all the sound and the fury, the millions spent, the energy expended, the names called, the situation would boil down to this:

Governor Race Tops Interest

Citizens Trek to Polls As Morning Fog Lifts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Heavy voting in scattered precincts soon after the polls opened at 6:30 a. m. today pointed to a record Ohio vote for an off-year election.

Brisk, partly sunny weather prevailed generally.

Several precincts in Columbus and its suburbs reported that early voting appeared as heavy as during the last presidential election. A similar report came from London, Ohio, to the west.

Cleveland election officials said the vote in the state's most populous area "could be a big one if the day stays nice."

An early morning fog, blamed for slowing early balloting in Cincinnati, soon lifted and officials said voting began to pick up.

In Springfield, where there was an early morning fog, election officials said the early balloting was normal.

Early predictions of a record 3.8 million vote for a non-presidential election could turn out to be low, officials agreed. The state's comparable high was nearly 3.4 million in 1958. Ohio's 1959 presidential election total exceeded 4.2 million votes.

In the major Ohio race, voters decide whether to give Democrat Gov. Michael V. DiSalle another four-year term or replace him with Republican State Auditor James A. Rhodes.

Up for grabs in less spectacular races are eight other state offices, 24 seats in the U.S. House and one in the U.S. Senate.

Republican John Marshall Briley of Toledo offered Sen. Frank J. Lausche, incumbent Democrat, what he called a "live pair" because the former five-term Ohio governor is ill in a hospital at Bethesda, Md.

Briley, former business executive turned politician, said he would not vote in the senatorial race because he understood Lausche's illness would keep the senator from voting. Aides said Lausche is recovering from exhaustion but is expected to win handily.

Vying for voter interest was a contest for congressman-at-large, Rep. Robert Taft Jr., Republican floor leader in the Ohio House, raced another famous-name candidate in Democrat Richard D. Kennedy, Cleveland real estate man who is unrelated to the President. The statewide contest resulted from allotment of a 24th congressman to Ohio on the basis of the last federal census.

Although observers expected Taft to win going away, results in the 23 congressional district races were not expected to change materially the 16-7 Republican advantage over Democrats in the Ohio delegation.

Also up for decision is a proposal to clarify Ohio's constitutional ban on most Sunday business. Sponsored through initiative petition by a large milk firm, the proposal seeks to prohibit a ban on Sunday sale of milk and milk products along with other so-called necessities.

Vatican Parley Is Speeded Up

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John XIII moved today to speed up the lagging pace of the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council, giving its presidency new powers to limit speeches.

At the same time, the Pope confirmed that the first phase of the council would end Dec. 8. He did not say when the sessions would resume, but Vatican sources have indicated it would be after Easter, April 14.

The papal announcement was read to the more than 2,000 prelates by Archbishop Pericle Felici, council secretary-general, during the day's session in St. Peter's.

The Pope gave the council presidency power to propose that discussions be ended "when the presidency judged that the matter had been sufficiently examined and illustrated."

Six speakers already have given their views on the second of eight chapters in a proposed constitution dealing with public worship.

Poll May Alter Ag Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The future pattern of farm legislation may be shaped by today's voting for congressional seats.

Most of those who oppose the Kennedy administration's policy of farm product supply management through farm-approved controls predict that even a modest gain by the Republicans in the House would close the door to additional control laws.

But these same farm and legislative leaders say that should Democrats gain a few seats in the House, possibly as few as five, the administration would have a good chance of broadening farm controls in the next session of Congress.

The administration wants restrictions on feed grains and milk, two commodities not now subject to controls. It also wants a new program for cotton which might well require broader use of government payments, a farm stabilization and income device opposed by many who also are against controls.

Farm organization leaders will have their eyes glued on election results. None more so than the American Farm Bureau Federation, which opposes Kennedy control proposals: the National Grange, which has leaned in the direction of some of the Kennedy plants, and the National Farmers Union, which has supported the President.

When the various farm organization hold their conventions to draft their own legislative recommendations, they will be guided by the congressional election results.

Judge 'Shudders' At Traffic Case

CLEVELAND (AP)—"I shudder at the magnitude of this crime." Municipal court Judge Edward S. Crudele uttered these words at a hearing Monday in suburban Garfield Heights where Justin J. Geratis, truck driver involved in a collision in which six Akron school teachers died, pleaded innocent to a traffic manslaughter charge.

Bond was set at $50,000 for Geratis, 41. He was held to the grand jury and sent to County Jail in default of the bond.

Geratis had been in Cuyahoga Heights jail since Friday, when his truck, authorities said, crossed the center line on the Willow Freeway near Ohio 17, brushed two cars and hit the auto in which the teachers were riding.

Thant-Red Cross Parley To Fix Cuban Inspection

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Acting Secretary-General U Thant meets today with two leaders of the International Committee of the Red Cross—ICRC—to nail down details of a plan for the neutral agency to inspect Cuban-bound Soviet ships for arms.

The Red Cross committee disclosed in Geneva Monday it had received U.N. assurance that Prime Minister Fidel Castro would accept its inspection of ships heading for Cuba.

The committee said arms inspection was normally outside its sphere, but that it could consider lending its good offices to the United Nations as requested by Thant.

It said final agreement would hinge on the conference between Thant and Paul Ruegger, former committee president, and Paul Borsinger, secretary of the ICRC executive board.

The United States has agreed to the Soviet proposal to let the Red Cross check on incoming Russian ships. Washington indicated that if the plan went into operation, it would lift its naval arms blockade now ringing Cuba.

Still unsettled, however, was the key question raised by Castro's refusal to let the United Nations, the Red Cross or any other agency conduct inspection on Cuban soil to make sure Soviet missile bases have been dismantled as promised by Premier Khrushchev.

U.S. sources stressed that President Kennedy's assurance that the United States would not invade Cuba depended on tearing down the bases and shipping the rockets back to the Soviet Union and on international verification that this had been done.

Within a day or so U.S. surveillance flights are expected to show whether the Russians are withdrawing the IL28 bombers which are capable of carrying nuclear warheads and have a 750-mile range.

The Pentagon was maintaining an almost complete blackout of news dealing with surveillance results.

Washington sources said there was some indication the work of uncrating the bombers has stopped. They said further surveillance will be necessary to show whether the Russians are withdrawing the planes under Soviet Premier Khrushchev's agreement to remove all offensive weapons from Cuba.

The informants said information reached Washington Saturday that while the Russians were dismantling the missile bases they were continuing to uncrate and assemble the estimated 20 or so IL28s shipped to Cuba.

President Kennedy was reported to have been highly concerned about the report which indicated Khrushchev might be hedging on his part of the crisis agreement.

On Sunday, according to the sources, U.S. representative John J. McCloy took up the matter in New York with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov.

McCloy was understood to have told the Russian the United States wants the planes as well as the missiles removed from Cuba.

McCloy was reported to have made plain that Kennedy's no-invasion pledge held good only if the Soviet Union followed through with its part of the bargain.

Kuznetsov repeated the Soviet premier's assurances that the offensive weapons would be removed from Cuba under international inspection, said the sources.

At the Pentagon Monday, almost every question on the Cuban situation was turned back with a "no comment."

Nixon-Brown Fuss To End In Balloting

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Upwards of five million California voters were expected to troop out today to settle the long, quarrelsome contest for governor between Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Republican Richard M. Nixon.

The battle reached a climax with an election eve clash that echoed familiar charges and counter-charges.

Nixon, his political future at stake, told a statewide television audience from Los Angeles that he has been the victim of a malicious smear unlike anything ever seen in American politics.

He characterized his opposition as panicky.

Brown replied that his opponent "ascribed to me charges I have never made." He called the broadcast "just a tattered rerun" of Nixon's campaign. Democratic spokesmen said Nixon, trailing in polls, was desperate.

An estimated 70 to 75 per cent of the 7½ million voters will make their choice for the $40,000-a-year state job and its built-in national prestige.

Mrs. FDR Is Too Ill To Cast Vote Today

A family spokesman explained that she did not have an absentee ballot because when she went to a hospital at the end of September "no one had the slightest idea she would not be well enough to vote herself at Hyde Park as per usual."

The 78-year-old former First Lady was reported "resting quietly" Monday, but her condition was said to be unchanged.

Governor Race Tops Interest

Citizens Trek to Polls As Morning Fog Lifts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Heavy voting in scattered precincts soon after the polls opened at 6:30 a.m. today pointed to a record Ohio vote for an off-year election.

Brisk, partly sunny weather prevailed generally.

Several precincts in Columbus and its suburbs reported that early voting appeared as heavy as during the last presidential election. A similar report came from London, Ohio, to the west.

Cleveland election officials said the vote in the state's most populous area "could be a big one if the day stays nice."

An early morning fog, blamed for slowing early balloting in Cincinnati, soon lifted and officials said voting began to pick up.

In Springfield, where there was an early morning fog, election officials said the early balloting was normal.

Early predictions of a record 3.8 million vote for a non-presidential election could turn out to be low, officials agreed. The state's comparable high was nearly 3.4 million in 1958. Ohio's 1950 presidential election total exceeded 4.2 million votes.

In the major Ohio race, voters decide whether to give Democrat Gov. Michael V. DiSalle another four-year term or replace him with Republican State Auditor James A. Rhodes.

Up for grabs in less spectacular races are eight other state offices, 24 seats in the U.S. House and one in the U.S. Senate.

Republican John Marshall Briley of Toledo offered Sen. Frank J. Lausche, incumbent Democrat, what he called a "live pair" because the former five-term Ohio governor is ill in a hospital at Bethesda, Md.

Briley, former business executive turned politician, said he would not vote in the senatorial race because he understood Lausche's illness would keep the senator from voting. Aides said Lausche is recovering from exhaustion but is expected to win handily.

Vying for voter interest was a contest for congressman-at-large, Rep. Robert Taft Jr., Republican floor leader in the Ohio House, faced another famous-name candidate in Democrat Richard D. Kennedy, Cleveland real estate man who is unrelated to the President. The statewide contest resulted from allotment of a 24th congressman to Ohio on the basis of the last federal census.

Although observers expected Taft to win going away, results in the 23 congressional district races were not expected to change materially the 16-7 Republican advantage over Democrats in the Ohio delegation.

Also up for decision is a proposal to clarify Ohio's constitutional ban on most Sunday business. Sponsored through initiative petition by a large milk firm, the proposal seeks to prohibit a ban on Sunday sale of milk and milk products along with other so-called necessities.

Vatican Parley Is Speeded Up

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John XIII moved today to speed up the lagging pace of the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council, giving its presidency new powers to limit speeches.

At the same time, the Pope confirmed that the first phase of the council would end Dec. 8. He did not say when the sessions would resume, but Vatican sources have indicated it would be after Easter, April 14.

The papal announcement was read to the more than 2,000 prelates by Archbishop Pericle Felici, council secretary-general, during the day's session in St. Peter's.

The Pope gave the council presidency power to propose that discussions be ended "when the presidency judged that the matter had been sufficiently examined and illustrated."

Six speakers already have given their views on the second of eight chapters in a proposed constitution dealing with public worship.

Polio Vaccine Given to Only 17,321 Persons

Make-Up Clinic Slated For City, County People

Final tabulations of persons receiving Type I Sabin oral polio vaccine in Pickaway County Sunday fell short of the estimated 20,000 figure.

A complete report of the 10 clinics today listed 17,321 persons who received the polio vaccine. This is about 50 per cent of the county population.

Roundtowners turned out for the SOS program in greater numbers than the county areas as more than two-thirds of the city's 12,000 residents received the vaccine.

Efforts will be made this Friday to immunize the other 50 per cent of the county, according to Dr. H. H. Swope.

HE announced today that a clinic would be set up in the corridor at City Hall from 1-8 p. m. Friday which will offer both city and county residents the opportunity to receive the vaccine at a public clinic.

The Pickaway County Medical Society is making plans for the second SOS Sunday next month when Type II vaccine will be given.

Here is a breakdown of clinic totals as a result of Sunday program. Atwater School, 3,549; S. Court Street School, 2,145; Circleville High School, 2,906; Logan Elm, 2,127; Williamsport, 1,282; Scioto Twp. School, 956; Ashville - Harrison, 2,044; Monroe Twp. School, 655; New Holland, 464; and Walnut Twp. School, 1,194.

Sabin Defends His Oral Polio Vaccine

CINCINNATI (AP)—Dr. Albert Sabin, who has been quick to defend the oral live-virus polio vaccine he developed, contends it was irresponsible to link the vaccine with paralytic illness in Nebraska.

He said Monday Public Health Service officials have reported seven suspected cases from Lincoln, Neb., in which persons developed an illness similar to acute polio within 7 to 22 days after taking Type III Sabin vaccine.

Dr. Sabin, University of Cincinnati virologist, contended the evidence showed, however, that in five of the cases, the ailment was not polio, but other diseases of the nervous system.

The other cases involved a girl who had five Salk polio inoculations and a woman who had four Salk shots.

Army Announces Name Change Of Cincinnati Ordnance Area

Colonel J. E. McKinney, commanding officer, has announced a change in the name of the Cincinnati Ordnance District. The 41-year-old organization has been renamed the Cincinnati Procurement District, U. S. Army.

Colonel McKinney emphasized that there is no change in the personnel, or the mission or the location of the headquarters in the Swift Building at 230 East Ninth Street. The area served by the Cincinnati Procurement District remains the same — southern Ohio, southern Indiana, and the entire states of Kentucky and Tennessee.

This change in name of the local organization is related to the reorganization of the Army which is taking place at the present time. This reorganization, which was initiated by Secretary of Defense, Robert S. McNamara, has resulted in consolidation of the functions and responsibilities of the former Technical Services of the Army into the Army Materiel Command.

To a layman, reference to the Cincinnati Procurement District might suggest, a dimly-conceived military set-up, active in wartime, perhaps, but dormant otherwise. Just the opposite is true. The Cincinnati Procurement District is big business employing 388 civilians and 10 military officers.

During World War II, the District delivered material valued at $1-billion; during one year of the Korean emergency, the material delivered by the District was valued at $424-million; and in Fiscal Year 1958, the District delivered approximately $36-million worth of material.

More recently, in Fiscal Year 1961, the District had an average of 559 contracts under administration, the average dollar value of which amounted to $139-million and in Fiscal Year 1962, which ended last June 30, the District had 781 contracts under administration with a face value of $223-million and delivered $121-million worth of material.

In view of that, it is apparent the new organization, the Cincinnati Procurement District, has its work cut out for it in providing the American soldier with the best fighting equipment conceivable — at the least cost to the taxpayer.

Army Announces Name Change Of Cincinnati Ordnance Area

Colonel J. E. McKinney, commanding officer, has announced a change in the name of the Cincinnati Ordnance District. The 41-year-old organization has been renamed the Cincinnati Procurement District, U. S. Army.

Colonel McKinney emphasized that there is no change in the personnel, or the mission or the location of the headquarters in the Swift Building at 230 East Ninth Street. The area served by the Cincinnati Procurement District remains the same — southern Ohio, southern Indiana, and the entire states of Kentucky and Tennessee.

This change in name of the local organization is related to the reorganization of the Army which is taking place at the present time. This reorganization, which was initiated by Secretary of Defense, Robert S. McNamara, has resulted in consolidation of the functions and responsibilities of the former Technical Services of the Army into the Army Materiel Command.

To a layman, reference to the Cincinnati Procurement District might suggest, a dimly-conceived military set-up, active in wartime, perhaps, but dormant otherwise. Just the opposite is true. The Cincinnati Procurement District is big business employing 388 civilians and 10 military officers.

During World War II, the District delivered material valued at $1-billion; during one year of the Korean emergency, the material delivered by the District was valued at $424-million; and in Fiscal Year 1958, the District delivered approximately $36-million worth of material.

More recently, in Fiscal Year 1961, the District had an average of 559 contracts under administration, the average dollar value of which amounted to $139-million and in Fiscal Year 1962, which ended last June 30, the District had 781 contracts under administration with a face value of $223-million and delivered $121-million worth of material.

In view of that, it is apparent the new organization, the Cincinnati Procurement District, has its work cut out for it in providing the American soldier with the best fighting equipment conceivable — at the least cost to the taxpayer.

Trucker Held In Death of 6 Teachers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Traffic manslaughter charges were filed Monday against a Cleveland man whose truck slammed into a car and killed six Akron school teachers.

The truck driver, Justin J. Geratis, 43, pleaded innocent at a preliminary hearing in Garfield Municipal Court. He was bound over to the county grand jury under $50,000 bond.

The car-truck collision occurred late Friday on the Willow Freeway about a half mile north of Ohio 17, Cuyahoga Heights police chief Frank Bartczak said. Geratis apparently fell asleep and his truck crossed the center strip, brushed two other cars, then plowed into the auto bearing the teachers.

Geratis had said earlier that he could not recall anything before his truck piled head-on into the car with the teachers.

Bulgar Chief Is Ousted by Red Party

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Bulgarian Premier Anton Yugov has been ousted from his post and expelled from the Communist party's central committee.

Yugov's ouster, apparently an element of a major purge of remaining Stalinists, was announced at the opening session of the Eighth Bulgarian Party Congress here by First Party Secretary Todor Zhivkov.

Zhivkov, in a five-hour address to the 1,055 delegates, accused Yugov of having sided with his predecessor, former Premier Vulko Chervenkov, who was deposed from executive posts in 1956 as a Stalinist.

Chervenkov's expulsion from the party was also announced by Zhivkov. Chervenkov had retained his party membership despite his fall from high position.

Zhivkov also disclosed that a number of other tanking government members had been stripped of their posts in government and party.

They were: Former Deputy Premier Georgi Zankov, former Interior Minister Ivan Raikov and his deputy, Apostol Kolchev, as well as former Trade Minister Rusi Khristozov.

Father-Son Farm Team On Probation

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The DeLores, Shelby County father-son farming team who drove off U.S. marshals and FBI agents in 1961 in a dispute over wheat acreage allotments, have been placed on probation for two years and the father fined $1,274.

The sentencing was pronounced here Monday by Federal Court Judge Carl Weinman.

The DeLores—Henry, 69, and his son, Robert—were convicted earlier this year.

In another Federal Court case, L.S. Ellison, 37, of Hamilton was sentenced to 15 months in prison for possession of counterfeit money. He still faces two more counts involving the same case.

Also convicted on the same charge and sentenced Monday was William H. Langdon. He was given a 12-month sentence of which six were suspended.

The pair was arrested after a waitress recognized it as phony money given her and called police.

Red Chief Calls Cuba Rocket Removal Common Sense Idea

MOSCOW (AP) — Deputy Premier Alexei Kosygin declared today that withdrawal of Soviet rockets from Cuba was "a concession to common sense."

At the same time he pledged to help Cuba defend its sovereignty.

"We helped and will continue to help the Cuban people defend their sacred right to peace," Kosygin said.

He spoke at a rally in the Kremlin auditorium on the eve of the celebration of the 45th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Premier Khrushchev and other leaders of the Soviet government and Communist party were on the platform.

Kosygin also expressed regret over fighting on the Indian-Chinese border. He urged immediate negotiations.

"The sooner these negotiations start," he said, "the better for the cause of peace."

It was a wide-ranging speech and Kosygin reiterated familiar Soviet demands. He asserted that peaceful coexistence was a leading point of Lenin's doctrine.

Premier Khrushchev was on the rostrum, but did not speak.

Regarding the rockets that were sent to Cuba, Kosygin said that so long as President Kennedy had "solely declared before the world that there would be no aggression against Cuba, either on the side of the United States, or by any other country in the Western Hemisphere, the presence of the weapons — which had been called offensive by the United States President — lost their significance."

Kosygin blamed the United States for the Cuban crisis.

"Who," he asked, "is guilty in this conflict? Militarism, aggressive imperialism of the United States. It created this conflict which could cost mankind great losses."

"But finally, on the basis of a compromise and mutual concessions, the sharpness of the conflict is now liquidated. Negotiations are being held to liquidate it completely."

The crew-cut deputy premier spent a considerable amount of time justifying what he called the Cuban compromise.

"Some people," he said, "ask if it was necessary to yield. We think it was necessary to make a concession from both sides."

"This compromise is in the interests of the whole world, because on that basis there has been liquidated the danger of a thermonuclear war."

Ted is a heavy favorite to defeat Republican George Cabot Lodge in the race for the Senate seat that has been held by either a Kennedy or a Lodge for 45 of the last 69 years.

President Kennedy flew into Boston Monday night to cast a vote for his brother—and, by his presence, give a psychological lift to Ted and the rest of the Democratic state ticket.

The President slipped out of his hotel Monday night for a quick visit with his maternal grandmother, Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, in her brown clapboard home in the Dorchester section.

Mrs. Fitzgerald, who was 97 years old last Wednesday, is the widow of "Honey Fitz," colorful onetime mayor of Boston and Massachusetts congressman.

"Honey Fitz" ran for the U.S. Senate in 1916 but lost to Henry Cabot Lodge Sr., great-grandfather of George Cabot Lodge.

Paper Losses Suffered in College Test

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Midwestern students playing a game of corporation management have found themselves unanimously plagued by paper losses for failing to heed signs of a sluggish business pace.

First returns Monday of the intercollegiate competition came out of Indiana University's electronic computer showing paper losses ranging from $46,000 at Iowa Wesleyan to $120,000 at Denison University. Entries came from nine colleges in the Mid-America Academic Conference. Wilmington and Denison are the two Ohio schools in the conference.

L. L. Waters, I. U. transportation professor, noted that Iowa Wesleyan's students fared best in the paper competition by reducing prices to improve sales in a business slump.

The student executives turn in a new set of decisions every two weeks for the next six months. In the next round, a sharp upswing in business activity will be fed into the hypothetical conditions to be considered.

50 Million Americans Go To Polls Today

Control of the statehouse is considered the first and best step toward solid political organizing.

It has been a strange campaign throughout.

Here was John Fitzgerald Kennedy, riding in a motorcade through the Naugatuck Valley of Connecticut, speaking earnestly at a bean feed in St. Paul, trying to stir a listless crowd at the Muskegon, Mich., airport.

Everywhere the message was the same: Send me more Democrats so that I can get this country moving again, with Medicare, with more jobs, with better housing.

Here was Dwight D. Eisenhower acting far more politically heated than he ever did as President, stumping around the country with the enthusiasm of a young war horse.

From San Francisco to Boston, his plea was the same: Let's cut down on all this spending. Let's elect Republicans and have some sanity around here.

And then, the dramatic night of Oct. 22.

The Russians, the President said, were installing offensive nuclear weapons in Cuba, something this nation would not tolerate. He threw an offensive arms blockade around the island, and the United States and Russia moved toward a showdown.

With this, Kennedy canceled all his remaining campaign trips.

In the past two frantic weeks no one has been able to say with any accuracy what Cuba means politically. But it hasn't been for want of trying.

Will it really help Republicans—many of whom have been calling all along for a tougher line on Cuba? Or will it mean a tendency to rally around the President and vote Democratic as a sign of solidarity?

These off-year elections are hard to keep in focus because they lack two gladiators struggling for national attention as in a presidential race.

Instead, as the returns roll in tonight interest must be scattered from coast to coast.

Take Massachusetts. Young Edward M. Kennedy, the President's brother, decided he wanted to be a senator. He had only been out of law school three years, but here he is, at 30—minimum age for senators, expecting to get the President's and enough other votes to defeat George Cabot Lodge, comparatively seasoned at 35.

Now, a quick switch across the country to California.

Here Richard M. Nixon, Republican presidential candidate in 1960, has had a knockdown fight in his attempt to unhorse Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

If Nixon can win—and he never has lost an election in his home state—he may again get a try at the White House. If Brown can win—"I'm just an old shoe, but people feel comfortable with me"—it will probably mean political curtains for Nixon, at the age of 49.

Jumping back to New York—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is a politician with a most unusual problem. His friends say they wish he had a tougher opponent than Robert M. Morgenthau, an almost unknown Democrat. The Republican theory is that Rockefeller would have won big anyway, and now his boosters think he may be handicapped in presidential consideration because he didn't beat a first-stringer.

Then there are the Republican seedlings in Michigan and Pennsylvania who may grow into presidential timber.

George Romney, the former automaker on his first drive into politics, hoping to defeat Gov. John B. Swainson and end a 14-year-old hold Democrats have had on the Michigan statehouse.

William W. Scranton, another young man in a hurry, who after one term in Congress wants to

Behind-the-Scenes Story

Hope Held Cuban Episode Marks New Khrush Policy

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the fifth and last article of Reiman Morin's series on the Cuban crisis.

By REIMAN MORIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — During their conference in Vienna last year, an odd but serious exchange took place over the luncheon table between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

It concerned the Bay of Pigs, scene of the star-crossed Cuban invasion, April 17, 1961.

"The Bay of Pigs was a mistake," Kennedy said, candidly.

"But in the American system, we can publicly admit our mistakes."

"So can we," Khrushchev retorted. "We have publicly admitted Stalin's mistakes."

"Yes," said the President, gesturing. "But your own mistakes—?"

The question hung in the air and went unanswered. After a moment of silence, Khrushchev changed the subject.

When Khrushchev announced, Sunday, Oct. 28, that he was withdrawing the Russian missiles from Cuba, he did not acknowledge a mistake. He said the action was taken "in the interests of peace."

But the original Soviet reaction to Kennedy's proclamation of the quarantine of shipments of offensive weapons to Cuba was a rejection and warning.

Moscow radio broadcast a note which said: "The Soviet government resolutely rejects such claims (the U.S. right to blockade Cuba.) The arrogant actions of American imperialism could lead to disastrous consequences to all mankind."

Then, little by little, the Soviet line appeared to be changing, easing off.

Khrushchev replied to a message from the British philosopher, Bertrand Russell, saying he would take no "rash action." On Wednesday, Oct. 24, it was reported that some Soviet-bloc ships had changed course, avoiding the blockade zone.

On Friday, Khrushchev said he would not send any more ships into the blockade area for the time being.

A still unpublished message from Khrushchev on Friday "hinted" as an administration official puts it, that he might agree to removing the missiles from Cuba.

In another note, however, Khrushchev suggested a horse-trade, taking Russian missiles out of Cuba in exchange for the dismantling of U.S. bases in Turkey. Kennedy said in reply, "preliminary to consideration of any proposals, work on the Cuban bases must stop, offensive weapons must be rendered inoperable."

At the Pentagon, some correspondents thought an invasion of Cuba might start over the week end, or on Monday.

The atmosphere in Washington was eerie, with a sense of foreboding.

Then, shortly after 9 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 28, came the electrifying announcement from Moscow—Khrushchev agreed to dismantle the missile sites on Cuba, have the weapons crates and returned to the Soviet Union. His message referred to "previous instructions" to stop work on the nuclear bases.

Kennedy received this information from news agency teletype machines. At the Pentagon, officers tore the story from the machines, paragraph by paragraph, and rushed it to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

In the immediate aftermath, there was no gloating at the White House, nor has there been any since.

Officials soberly waited for the next step, to see whether the Soviet promises would be kept. Attention turned toward the United Nations, where the next step would be taken. The prevailing attitude in Washington appeared to be wait and see.

In evaluating the whole powder-keg incident, officials make these points:

1. The Soviet objective in Cuba was to present the United States with a fait accompli. The work on the missile bases was pushed so feverishly that the objective might have been reached in another few days. The Cuban bases, in themselves, did not change the balance of nuclear striking power between the United States and the Soviet Union. But, as a top official put it, "they were setting up eight or 10 sites for 30 or 40 missiles. If they were allowed to proceed, why not 10 more sites? That could very well have made a difference."

2. The consequences, in official thinking, would have been to encourage the Soviet Union to take a stronger line on Berlin and in all Latin America.

3. For over a year, in spite of the Vienna conferences between Kennedy and Khrushchev, qualified observers have said they did not believe the Russians were convinced the United States would fight, if necessary, over these super-important areas in the world.

4. In his reply to Khrushchev's message about removing the missiles from Cuba and dismantling the sites, Kennedy said: "I agree with you that we must devote urgent attention to the problem of disarmament as it relates to the whole world and also to critical areas. Perhaps now, as we step back from danger, we can together make real progress in this vital field."

Is it possible that the Cuban episode might lead to a gradual turn-around in the whole pattern of the cold war, a solution to disputes that now seem insoluble?

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan touched on this point in a statement in the House of Commons, Oct. 30. He pointed out that Khrushchev agreed to international verification to determine that the Soviet missile bases in Cuba were defanged.

Having accepted the principle there, he said, the Russians may be able to accept it in other areas, such as disarmament.

"The world has had a shock," Macmillan said. "We have been very near the edge."

Hoffa Loses In High Court

Mail Fraud Case
Is Still Pending

WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union president, has lost his second attempt to get dismissal of an indictment by a federal grand jury in Orlando, Fla., charging mail fraud.

The Supreme Court rejected an appeal that asserted jury officials "consciously and deliberately manipulated" the racial balance of names placed in the jury box for selection of grand jurors.

The appeal also contended there was systematic exclusion from the grand jury of "wage earners, laborers, and working men of the lower economic strata who we likely to be members of labor unions."

The indictment also named Robert E. McCarthy Jr., a Detroit bank employee. McCarthy joined in Hoffa's appeal to the Supreme Court. The two were accused of using Teamsters' funds to promote a Florida housing development as a Teamsters' retirement haven, when it was actually privately owned.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Joseph P. Lieb in Tampa, Fla., refused to dismiss the indictment and was upheld by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans, La.

On Oct. 22, 1962 the Supreme Court refused to hear another appeal by Hoffa and McCarthy which also attacked the indictment. That appeal asserted President Kennedy and other high government officials by public statements had prejudiced the grand jury.

While the Supreme Court had the two appeals pending, Hoffa went on trial in federal court in Nashville in another case. In the Nashville trial he was charged with violating the Taft-Hartley Act by using union influence to set up a trucking company.

Veteran Bowler, 63, Dies in Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — George Vallos, 63, a veteran of 38 consecutive ABC tournaments and operator of a recreation center, collapsed while bowling Sunday night. He was pronounced dead at St. Elizabeth Hospital minutes later.

Vallos, a native of Cleveland, participated in bowling 47 years. His best ABC all-event total was 1898 pins and once he finished sixth in singles in tournament play. He had 11 300 games and compiled an average of 190 pins in ABC tournaments. His "Vallos Classic" has attracted some of the nation's best bowlers to Youngstown during the past 22 years.

License Money Distribution Is Announced

The second bid distribution of 1962 motor vehicle license money by the state was made Friday with $16,958,469 going to counties and municipalities. Pickaway County received $39,170.50.

Coming soon is another distribution of this year's license money to counties and townships amounting to $2,760,681.

These will wind up payments of motor vehicle license money for this year and will make a total of $82,913,712 distributed by the state in 1962, according to State Auditor James A. Rhodes. The total for the year is $17,244,907 more than local governments received from auto tags in 1961, Rhodes said.

The increase is largely due to legislative action in 1961 which switched to local governments the money formerly taken from motor vehicle licenses to finance the Department of Highway Safety.

The next distribution of motor vehicle license money will be made next April after the 1963 license plates have gone on sale.

In Friday's distribution each county in the state, regardless of size, population or road mileage, received $11,204.07 from the five per cent equalization fund for county highways.

Purina Again Attains Mark Of One Million Safe Hours

Employees of the Circleville Ralston Purina plant have completed 1,000,000 safe hours of working without a lost time accident.

This marks the second time employees of the local plant have completed this record. The Circleville establishment is the first plant in the entire Purina system to attain this goal for the second time.

This accomplishment of 1,000,000 man hours worked without a lost time accident has been five years, 11 months and four days in the making.

A banquet is being planned for the employees and their families to celebrate the event.

JOHN MACKENZIE, plant superintendent, pointed out in a bulletin to each worker: "We are proud and happy and thankful because over this long period of time each employee has been able to return home to his loved ones healthy and happy with none of the pain, agony and suffering which accidents cause. This is the reason we are all interested in this safety record."

He said this accomplishment of a second million safe man hours is all the more significant in that it is believed to be the only time a plant in the feed industry has accomplished this safety distinction for the second time.

50 Million Americans Go To Polls Today

Control of the statehouse is considered the first and best step toward solid political organizing.

It has been a strange campaign throughout.
Here was John Fitzgerald Kennedy, riding in a motorcade through the Naugatuck Valley of Connecticut, speaking earnestly at a bean feed in St. Paul, trying to stir a listless crowd at the Muskegon, Mich., airport.

Everywhere the message was the same: Send me more Democrats so that I can get this country moving again, with Medicare, with more jobs, with better housing.

Here was Dwight D. Eisenhower acting far more politically heated than he ever did as President, stumping around the country with the enthusiasm of a young war horse.

From San Francisco to Boston, his plea was the same: Let's cut down on all this spending. Let's elect Republicans and have some sanity around here.

And then, the dramatic night of Oct. 22.
The Russians, the President said, were installing offensive nuclear weapons in Cuba, something this nation would not tolerate. He threw an offensive arms blockade around the island, and the United States and Russia moved toward a showdown.

With this, Kennedy canceled all his remaining campaign trips.

In the past two frantic weeks no one has been able to say with any accuracy what Cuba means politically. But it hasn't been for want of trying.

Will it really help Republicans—many of whom have been calling all along for a tougher line on Cuba? Or will it mean a tendency to rally around the President and vote Democratic as a sign of solidarity?

These off-year elections are hard to keep in focus because they lack two gladiators struggling for national attention as in a presidential race.

Instead, as the returns roll in tonight interest must be scattered from coast to coast.

Take Massachusetts. Young Edward M. Kennedy, the President's brother, decided he wanted to be a senator. He had only been out of law school three years, but here he is, at 30—minimum age for senators, expecting to get the President's and enough other votes to defeat George Cabot Lodge, comparatively seasoned at 35.

Now, a quick switch across the country to California.

Here Richard M. Nixon, Republican presidential candidate in 1960, has had a knockdown fight in his attempt to unhorse Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

If Nixon can win—and he never has lost an election in his home state—he may again get a try at the White House. If Brown can win—"I'm just an old shoe, but people feel comfortable with me"—it will probably mean political curtains for Nixon, at the age of 49.

Jumping back to New York—

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is a politician with a most unusual problem. His friends say they wish he had a tougher opponent than Robert M. Morgenthau, an almost unknown Democrat. The Republican theory is that Rockefeller would have won big anyway, and now his boosters think he may be handicapped in presidential consideration because he didn't beat a first-stringer.

Then there are the Republican seedlings in Michigan and Pennsylvania who may grow into presidential timber:

George Romney, the former automaker on his first drive into politics, hoping to defeat Gov. John B. Swainson and end a 14-year-old hold Democrats have had on the Michigan statehouse.

William W. Scranton, another young man in a hurry, who after one term in Congress wants to

Behind-the-Scenes Story

Hope Held Cuban Episode Marks New Khrush Policy

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the fifth and last article of the Relman Morin series on the Cuban crisis.

By RELMAN MORIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — During their conference in Vienna last year, an odd but serious exchange took place over the luncheon table between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

It concerned the Bay of Pigs, scene of the star-crossed Cuban invasion, April 17, 1961.

"The Bay of Pigs was a mistake," Kennedy said, candidly. "But in the American system, we can publicly admit our mistakes."

"So can we," Khrushchev retorted. "We have publicly admitted Stalin's mistakes."

"Yes," said the President, gesturing. "But your own mistakes—?"

The question hung in the air and went unanswered. After a moment of silence, Khrushchev changed the subject.

When Khrushchev announced, Sunday, Oct. 28, that he was withdrawing the Russian missiles from Cuba, he did not acknowledge a mistake. He said the action was taken "in the interests of peace."

The question hung in the air and went unanswered. After a moment of silence, Khrushchev changed the subject.

When Khrushchev announced, Sunday, Oct. 28, that he was withdrawing the Russian missiles from Cuba, he did not acknowledge a mistake. He said the action was taken "in the interests of peace."

But the original Soviet reaction to Kennedy's proclamation of the quarantine of shipments of offensive weapons to Cuba was a rejection and warning.

Moscow radio broadcast a note which said: "The Soviet government resolutely rejects such claims (the U.S. right to blockade Cuba.) The arrogant actions of American imperialism could lead to disastrous consequences to all mankind."

Then, little by little, the Soviet line appeared to be changing, easing off.

Khrushchev replied to a message from the British philosopher, Bertrand Russell, saying he would take no "rash action." On Wednesday, Oct. 24, it was reported that some Soviet-bloc ships had changed course, avoiding the blockade zone. On Friday, Khrushchev said he would not send any more ships into the blockade area for the time being.

A still unpublished message from Khrushchev on Friday "hinted," as an administration official puts it, that he might agree to removing the missiles from Cuba.

In another, note however, Khrushchev suggested a horse-trade, taking Russian missiles out of Cuba in exchange for the dismantling of U.S. bases in Turkey. Kennedy said in reply, "preliminary to consideration of any proposals, work on the Cuban bases must stop, offensive weapons must be rendered inoperable."

At the Pentagon, some correspondents thought an invasion of Cuba might start over the week end, or on Monday.

The atmosphere in Washington was eerie, with a sense of foreboding.

Then, shortly after 9 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 28, came the electrifying announcement from Moscow—Khrushchev agreed to dismantle the missile sites on Cuba, have the weapons crated and returned to the Soviet Union. His message referred to "previous instructions" to stop work on the nuclear bases.

Kennedy received this information from news agency teletype machines. At the Pentagon, officers tore the story from the machines, paragraph by paragraph, and rushed it to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

In the immediate aftermath, there was no gloating at the White House, nor has there been any since.

Officials soberly waited for the next step, to see whether the Soviet promises would be kept. Attention turned toward the United Nations, where the next step would be taken. The prevailing attitude in Washington appeared to be wait and see.

In evaluating the whole powder-keg incident, officials make these points:

1. The Soviet objective in Cuba was to present the United States with a fait accompli. The work on the missile bases was pushed so feverishly that the objective might have been reached in another few days. The Cuban bases, in themselves, did not change the balance of nuclear striking power between the United States and the Soviet Union. But, as a top official put it, "they were setting up eight or 10 sites for 30 or 40 missiles. If they were allowed to proceed, why not 10 more sites? That could very well have made a difference."

2. The consequences, in official thinking, would have been to encourage the Soviet Union to take a stronger line on Berlin and in all Latin America.

3. For over a year, in spite of the Vienna conferences between Kennedy and Khrushchev, qualified observers have said they did not believe the Russians were convinced the United States would fight, if necessary, over these super-important areas in the world.

4. In his reply to Khrushchev's message about removing the missiles from Cuba and dismantling the sites, Kennedy said: "I agree with you that we must devote urgent attention to the problem of disarmament as it relates to the whole world and also to critical areas. Perhaps now, as we step back from danger, we can together make real progress in this vital field."

Is it possible that the Cuban episode might lead to a gradual turn-around in the whole pattern of the cold war, a solution to disputes that now seem insoluble?

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan touched on this point in a statement in the House of Commons, Oct. 30. He pointed out that Khrushchev agreed to international verification to determine that the Soviet missile bases in Cuba were de-fanged.

Having accepted the principle there, he said, the Russians may be able to accept it in other areas, such as disarmament.

"The world has had a shock," Macmillan said. "We have been very near the edge."

Hoffa Loses In High Court

Mail Fraud Case
Is Still Pending

WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union president, has lost his second attempt to get dismissal of an indictment by a federal grand jury in Orlando, Fla., charging mail fraud.

The Supreme Court rejected an appeal that asserted jury officials "consciously and deliberately manipulated" the racial balance of names placed in the jury box for selection of grand jurors.

The appeal also contended there was systematic exclusion from the grand jury of "wage earners, laborers, and working men of the lower economic strata who we likely to be members of labor unions."

The indictment also named Robert E. McCarthy Jr., a Detroit bank employee. McCarthy joined in Hoffa's appeal to the Supreme Court. The two were accused of using Teamsters' funds to promote a Florida housing development as a Teamsters' retirement haven, when it was actually privately owned.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Joseph P. Lieb in Tampa, Fla., refused to dismiss the indictment and was upheld by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans, La.

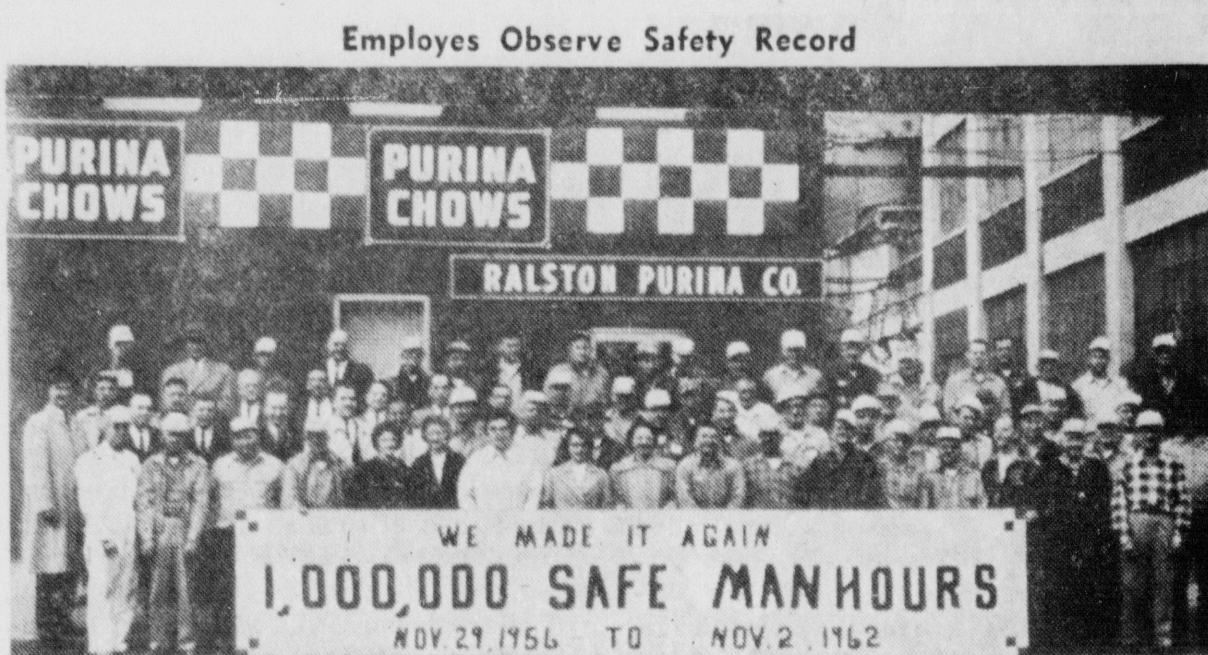

On Oct. 22, 1962 the Supreme Court refused to hear another appeal by Hoffa and McCarthy which also attacked the indictment. That appeal asserted President Kennedy and other high government officials by public statements had prejudiced the grand jury.

While the Supreme Court had the two appeals pending, Hoffa went on trial in federal court in Nashville in another case. In the Nashville trial he was charged with violating the Taft-Hartley Act by using union influence to set up a trucking company.

Veteran Bowler, 63, Dies in Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — George Vallos, 63, a veteran of 38 consecutive ABC tournaments and operator of a recreation center, collapsed while bowling Sunday night. He was pronounced dead at St. Elizabeth Hospital minutes later.

Vallos, a native of Cleveland, participated in bowling 47 years. His best ABC all-event total was 1898 pins and once he finished sixth in singles in tournament play. He had 11 300 games and compiled an average of 190 pins in ABC tournaments. His "Vallos Classic" has attracted some of the nation's best bowlers to Youngstown during the past 22 years.

License Money Distribution Is Announced

The second bid distribution of 1962 motor vehicle license money by the state was made Friday with $16,958,469 going to counties and municipalities. Pickaway County received $59,170.50.

Coming soon is another distribution of this year's license money to counties and townships amounting to $2,760,681.

These will wind up payments of motor vehicle license money for this year and will make a total of $82,913,712 distributed by the state in 1962, according to State Auditor James A. Rhodes. The total for the year is $17,244,907 more than local governments received from auto tags in 1961, Rhodes said.

The increase is largely due to legislative action in 1961 which switched to local governments the money formerly taken from motor vehicle licenses to finance the Department of Highway Safety.

The next distribution of motor vehicle license money will be made next April after the 1963 license plates have gone on sale.

In Friday's distribution each county in the state, regardless of size, population or road mileage, received $11,204.07 from the five per cent equalization fund for county highways.

Purina Again Attains Mark Of One Million Safe Hours

Employees of the Circleville Ralston Purina plant have completed 1,000,000 safe hours of working without a lost time accident.

This marks the second time employees of the local plant have completed this record. The Circleville establishment is the first plant in the entire Purina system to attain this goal for the second time.

This accomplishment of 1,000,000 man hours worked without a lost time accident has been five years, 11 months and four days in the making.

A banquet is being planned for the employees and their families to celebrate the event.

JOHN MACKENZIE, plant superintendent, pointed out in a bulletin to each worker: "We are proud and happy and thankful because over this long period of time each employee has been able to return home to his loved ones healthy and happy with none of the pain, agony and suffering which accidents cause. This is the reason we are all interested in this safety record."

son we are all interested in this safety record."

He said this accomplishment of a second million safe man hours is all the more significant in that it is believed to be the only time a plant in the feed industry has accomplished this safety distinction for the second time.

Cold Wind Blowing

Autumn's haze does not extend to the world political front. There developments have instead been brought suddenly into the sharpest focus in years. The Soviet Union has planted missiles in Cuba which can penetrate to the heartlands of Western Hemisphere nations, and is continuing to rush more missile emplacements to completion.

Red China, too, stands revealed anew for what it is: an aggressor. Like all those who live outside the law, it has demonstrated that it cares little for world opinion. At the very moment the United Nations discusses Communist China's proposed membership in that body, Red Chinese troops and tanks move against India.

The world, then, sees clearly where it stands. On the brink, in real and serious danger. Pretense is stripped away, and peaceful coexistence is seen as a phrase, not a policy. After years of supinely seeking to avoid it, the issue is met.

There must be a direct confrontation between West and East, between the United States and the Soviet Union. This is the meaning of Washington's determination to force Soviet missiles from this hemisphere at the risk of war.

Along with the tension and the fear, there is a curious, growing sense of relief. It is a feeling of knowing that the inevitable has finally been faced up to, a course charted, a goal spelled out.

Autumn's haze has indeed been blown away. The wind that has done it is chilled, and hints ominously of winter. But a people that has made provision — stores of preparedness, courage, determination — knows that the coldest winter can be survived.

World Bank Danger

A key international financial institution, and one which occupies a unique position in the development of backward economies, is the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Better known as the World Bank, this institution has granted low-interest loans totaling $6 billion to 60 nations or territories since its establishment in December, 1954.

A new organization is soon to take over, with the retirement of Eugene R. Black after 13 years as president. Mr. Black's designated successor, George D. Woods, chairman of the First Boston Corp., is the personal choice of the outgoing president and is expected to maintain the policy toward loans of his predecessor.

A great deal of the success of the World Bank is attributable to its strict adherence to responsible principles of good money management. Only loans for projects which meet high standards of need and workmanship are approved, and then only on terms which insure repayment.

Certainly this policy of financial responsibility is a paramount reason for the continued growth of the World Bank and the confidence of the many private investors who have subscribed to its various capital issues. Adherence to this policy has paid off in an unusual number of successful development ventures in recipient nations.

Only one fly appears in the management ointment of the World Bank which could prove troublesome to the new president and harmful to its future. That is the uninhibited growth of an offshoot of the bank which specializes in interest-free loans for 50 year periods and without many of the guarantees included in grants by the parent bank.

The International Development Association is inviting headaches with its interest free loose money policies. One of the reasons nations endowed with rich resources have never moved beyond various stages of poverty is inability to manage capital wisely and foster its growth. Enticing them into taking "free" money with no strings attached will not provide them the instruction they need badly.

It's Democracy's Bargain Day

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—This is democracy's bargain day.

The long tumult and the shouting dies as the people pick their sacrifice—the one who will be their public servant in the office he aspires to, whether it be dogcatcher or U.S. senator.

Shopping for the best political value they can find, each ordinary man or woman voter has a mystic might on election day.

However humble or exalted his calling, he assumes at the moment he casts his ballot the role of a judge, an atom of direct choice in the future well-being of his society.

Collectively, he is the one who hands out the togas of power to those who will represent him in the interval between now and the next election.

A cynical or skeptical person may feel his one vote may make little difference in a rising sea of votes that swells with the growing population.

"I might just as well have stayed at home," he tells himself on the way to the polls.

Inside You and Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.

Do you feel that everyone else is better than you? You may, without even knowing it!

Inferiority feelings stem from some real or imagined failure. Some trivial remark can spark these lifelong feelings.

Perhaps someone commented on your turned-up nose when you were a toddler and made you think it was deformed.

Unwise parents may have branded you deficient by comparing you with the genius next door. The feeling stays, even though his genius turned out to be a myth.

You often forget what sparked that inferiority idea and so you manufacture reasons.

You're too rich or too poor; too short or too tall; too fat or too thin. No matter how good you are, you'll find some way to prove you're low man on the totem pole.

Inferiority feelings can make or break you. They can spur you on to new success or paralyze all efforts into failure.

Don't pretend those inferiority feelings aren't there.

Some people hide behind a superior image. The talk like experts on satellites, philosophy, rock 'n' roll — anything, without ever admitting they don't know.

You can hide in Fantasyland or set your goal too high on purpose. Then you can criticize anyone whose home isn't spotless.

And when your home isn't — well, what can you expect with children around?

You can hide by becoming a super-specialist and spend all your spare time learning Arabic.

Don't hide! Inferiority feelings can make you kind, considerate and sympathetic — a more human human! Have faith in yourself! Work at a satisfying job, but make sure you can handle it.

Eventually you'll come to realize that in some ways you're better than others and then you can start looking at the doughnut — instead of the hole.

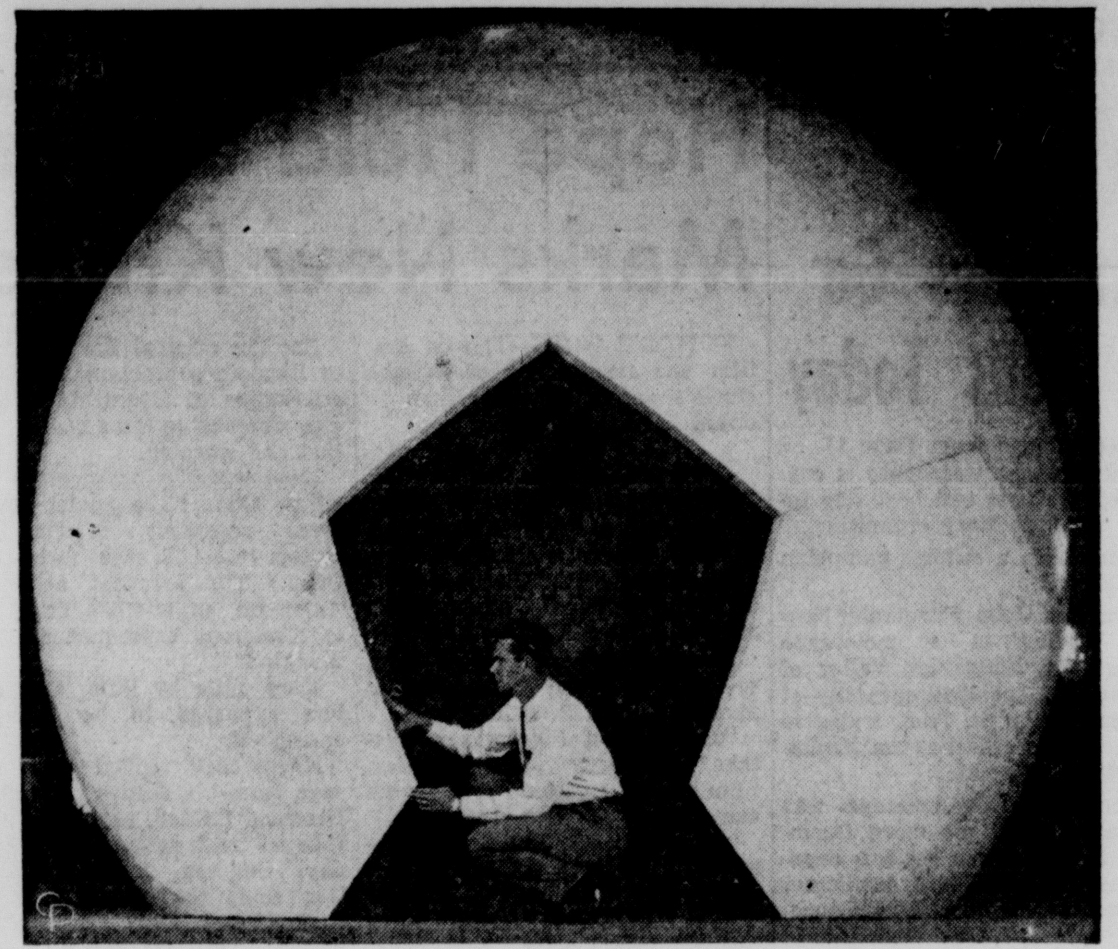

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

A Book for Children

By George Sokolsky

A lesser man often does not take the trouble to answer letters that come to him from boys and girls, but Herbert Hoover has never been a lesser man. As he explains it:

"I was a kid once. I grew up on sand-lot baseball, swimming holes, and fishing with worms. I had a minor part in raising two boys of my own. I directed the food supply to hundreds of millions of children, and I also directed the rehabilitation of tens of millions of them — the victims of famine and disease. And I have for twenty-five years had a hand in administering the Boys' Clubs which look after six hundred thousand boys."

My own children will ever have this man in their memory, for they have been with him on Christmas Day ever since they could walk and one of my boys followed in his footsteps and became a geologist.

And so he had Bill Nichols, a friend who edits "This Week," to go through thousands of letters from boys and girls and his replies to them. And so the little book "Herbert Hoover On Growing Up, his letters from and to American children," was put together and starts with this:

Dear Sir:
I am a Cub Scout. We are studying about Presidents. I would like some information about your boyhood or some interesting fact about your life.
Yours truly,
Ronnie

My Dear Ronnie:
I have your letter, and am proud to be under examination by a Cub Scout. I had a joyful boyhood on a farm and under the guardianship of country doctor.

The most interesting fact about my life is that due to the kindness and care of those persons, I was given a tough body. I have lived for more than eighty-seven years.

I have worked in over fifty different nations of the world. When you get older, you will find books giving the details. In the meantime I am sending you part of a speech which I made about my own growing-up.

Then there is this one:

Dear Mr. Hoover:
Our ninth grade class is conducting an interview. We could write to anyone we please. I have chosen you.

Would you please answer these questions if possible.

1. What was your first job?
2. Of all the Presidents which one do you admire the most?
3. Can you speak any other language besides English, if so which ones?
4. If you were in President Kennedy's place what would you do about the Berlin crisis?
5. What do you think of Premier Khrushchev's action?

Yours truly,
Dennis

My Dear Dennis:
1. Household and farm chores were my first jobs. They were unpaid. My first regular paying job was office boy.

2. My greatest admiration is for both Washington and Lincoln, but we have also had other great Presidents.

3. I once spoke sufficient French to get around on railways and in hotels — but not enough to negotiate with governments.

4. I would do exactly what he is doing.

5. I have a very poor opinion of him in every respect.

The truth of Herbert Hoover's character — the whole truth — went to a girl, Joyce Ann.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I am a student of history and am preparing a book of favorite quotes of famous people. I would appreciate it to have yours among the collection.

Sincerely,
Joyce Ann

Dear Joyce Ann:

My favorite quote is the Sermon on the Mount.

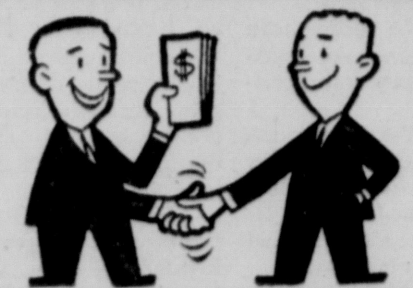

Herbert Hoover writes beautiful English and these letters will help many a boy and girl over a tough spots because there is a whole some philosophy in this Quaker who at 88 fought the battle of a severe operation and then went back to work. In this era of the young man, it is good to recall all the wonders of the experienced and mature-minded. This is a man whose total assets on the day he was graduated from college were a diploma and $20.22 and out of such possessions and a strong body and the good teachings of family and friends (he was early an orphan) he built for himself and his country a wonderful career.

This is a book to be given to the children of this generation on Christmas Day. It might help them understand themselves and the world in which they live with greater kindness and sweeter temper.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

Cold Wind Blowing

Autumn's haze does not extend to the world political front. There developments have instead been brought suddenly into the sharpest focus in years. The Soviet Union has planted missiles in Cuba which can penetrate to the heartlands of Western Hemisphere nations, and is continuing to rush more missile emplacements to completion.

Red China, too, stands revealed anew for what it is: an aggressor. Like all those who live outside the law, it has demonstrated that it cares little for world opinion. At the very moment the United Nations discusses Communist China's proposed membership in that body, Red Chinese troops and tanks move against India.

The world, then, sees clearly where it stands. On the brink, in real and serious danger. Pretense is stripped away, and peaceful coexistence is seen as a phrase, not a policy. After years of supinely seeking to avoid it, the issue is met.

There must be a direct confrontation between West and East, between the United States and the Soviet Union. This is the meaning of Washington's determination to force Soviet missiles from this hemisphere at the risk of war.

Along with the tension and the fear, there is a curious, growing sense of relief. It is a feeling of knowing that the inevitable has finally been faced up to, a course charted, a goal spelled out.

Autumn's haze has indeed been blown away. The wind that has done it is chilled, and hints ominously of winter. But a people that has made provision — stores of preparedness, courage, determination — knows that the coldest winter can be survived.

World Bank Danger

A key international financial institution, and one which occupies a unique position in the development of backward economies, is the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Better known as the World Bank, this institution has granted low-interest loans totaling $6 billion to 60 nations or territories since its establishment in December, 1954.

A new organization is soon to take over, with the retirement of Eugene R. Black after 13 years as president. Mr. Black's designated successor, George D. Woods, chairman of the First Boston Corp., is the personal choice of the outgoing president and is expected to maintain the policy toward loans of his predecessor.

A great deal of the success of the World Bank is attributable to its strict adherence to responsible principles of good money management. Only loans for projects which meet high standards of need and workmanship are approved, and then only on terms which insure repayment.

Certainly this policy of financial responsibility is a paramount reason for the continued growth of the World Bank and the confidence of the many private investors who have subscribed to its various capital issues. Adherence to this policy has paid off in an unusual number of successful development ventures in recipient nations.

Only one fly appears in the management ointment of the World Bank which could prove troublesome to the new president and harmful to its future. That is the uninhibited growth of an offshoot of the bank which specializes in interest-free loans for 50 year periods and without many of the guarantees included in grants by the parent bank.

The International Development Association is inviting headaches with its interest free loose money policies. One of the reasons nations endowed with rich resources have never moved beyond various stages of poverty is inability to manage capital wisely and foster its growth. Enticing them into taking "free" money with no strings attached will not provide them the instruction they need badly.

It's Democracy's Bargain Day

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—This is democracy's bargain day.

The long tumult and the shouting dies as the people pick their sacrifice—the one who will be their public servant in the office he aspires to, whether it be dog-catcher or U.S. senator.

Shopping for the best political value they can find, each ordinary man or woman voter has a mystic might on election day.

However humble or exalted his calling, he assumes at the moment he casts his ballot the role of a judge, an atom of direct choice in the future well-being of his society.

Collectively, he is the one who hands out the togas of power to those who will represent him in the interval between now and the next election.

A cynical or skeptical person may feel his one vote may make little difference in a rising sea of votes that swells with the growing population.

"I might just as well have stayed at home," he tells himself on the way to the polls.

But at the actual moment he casts that vote, he often feels an inner exultation, a sense of dignity that always goes with doing a duty—and making a choice in favor of what he values and believes in.

Any American worth his heritage always feels better after casting his ballot, and always feels guilty if through laziness, neglect or inertia he fails to vote.

For he has been taught since birth—and realizes in his heart of hearts—that the security of a political system which has won the world's wonder has been sustained for nearly 200 years by the actions of millions of men in long lines before the ballot box or on the battlefield.

To some foreign observers with totalitarian leanings, an American political campaign is a terrible or amusing human comedy of unnecessary and extravagant waste—a vast waste of time, effort and money.

They argue the people can be led better, more cheaply and more efficiently if their leaders are picked for them than if the people go through the periodic struggle of selecting their own leadership.

It is true, perhaps, that Americans may spend a billion dollars or more during a national election—an amount of money that would build 50 thousand $20,000 homes.

But the American people seem to feel that investment, or any other, is worth it to stay free in their own way.

In any race there must be losers as well as winners. Tonight for every precinct hall that rings with joy another will be hung with crepe.

In his hour of triumph the victor, however glad, must ask himself, "What did I really let myself in for?" The public is a demanding and querulous taskmaster—an octopus of many pressures. Lucky is the elected man who can keep himself from being squeezed into a political pretzel.

The defeated ones have a consolation. No one will ask them to fulfill all the promises they made. They can put them away until the next election—and maybe try again.

Ohio Governor Race To Draw Top Interest

DiSalle concluded his reelection campaign with a television question and answer broadcast from stations here and in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo and Zanesville. He planned to await returns at the Governor's Mansion. The governor voted in his hometown of Toledo by absentee ballot Oct. 22. Mrs. DiSalle voted there the previous day.

Rhodes turned out early to vote here and planned to await returns at home with his family. He issued a pre-election statement describing his campaign as positive and constructive and urging Ohioans to vote their convictions.

Creating considerable impact on the campaign in its closing days were two grand jury investigations. One of them, delving into complaints by a distiller that he paid to have his bourbon listed for sale in state liquor stores, is in recess until after election.

The other grand jury reported no basis for indictments on charges by DiSalle of fraud in Rhodes' office. The governor accused the auditor of charging local subdivisions rent for adding machines used by state examiners in auditing their books. Two accounting firms, in addition to the jury, reported finding no evidence of fraud, but DiSalle, an attorney, said his own investigation would continue regardless of the election.

An important facet of the election is control of the 1963 General Assembly. All 137 House seats will be filled for two-year terms. Republicans expect to retain control but are not so sure about the Senate. In the upper house, 19 of 33 seats will be filled. Holdovers occupy the other 14 because of staggered, four-year terms in the Senate.

All state officials, except judicial, will be elected simultaneously to four-year terms for the first time since Ohio shifted from two-year terms. The chief justice and two Ohio Supreme Court judges will be elected to six-year terms.

An unusual contest pits Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt, Lakewood Democrat, against Judge Kingsley A. Taft, Columbus Republican elected two years ago to a six-year term. Weygandt has served as chief justice since 1933. Supreme Court candidates were nominated in partisan primaries but run on non-partisan ballots in the November election.

Worthless Piece of Land Causes U.S.-Mexican Fuss

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—A little bit of land along the Rio Grande is giving an oversized headache to the United States and Mexico. Mexican President Adolfo Lopez Mateos discussed the piece of land a few months ago with President Kennedy. The several hundred acres of territory is American—by virtue of a capricious turn the Rio Grande took nearly 60 years ago. Mexico wants the area back.

It was reported in Washington recently that a settlement in the long standing boundary dispute is a distinct possibility before the end of the year.

The dispute had its origins back when the United States was occupying itself with wrapping up the Civil War. At the time, the luckless Maximilian was seeking to keep the slippery crown of Mexico on his head.

In 1864, the Rio Grande escaped its banks and roamed freely in Mexico. Then the river returned to its bed. But it didn't return to the exact spot it left. It re-entered a little below its exit and left a small bit of and on the United States side which shortly before had been in Mexico.

This was in a part of the country where land was almost worthless.

"It was just weeds and brush and a few trees. There wasn't a house there," says Cleofas Calleros, noted El Paso historian and an expert on this land segment.

The area eventually gained a name: El Chamizal — from the Spanish word for brush.

El Paso expanded and eventually people built houses there.

Now a very vocal but unorganized group in Mexico camors for its return to Mexico. Members of the group consider El Chamizal a point of national honor.

The two presidents discussed the matter when Kennedy visited Mexico last spring. On Sept. 1, Lopez Mateos said in his state of the nation speech that "nothing would contribute more to relations between the United States and Mexico than a settlement of the El Chamizal problem."

The presidents turned the touchy problem over to administrative aides.

Considering that the countries are on good terms and individuals on the border get along well, several solutions are offered frequently by citizens on both sides of the Rio Grande.

One would be to turn the area over to Mexico. Another would give Mexico land somewhere else of about the same size. A third is purchase of the land from Mexico.

Lopez Mateos, speaking through Foreign Minister Manuel Tello, said last summer that purchase or exchange of land would be unsatisfactory.

Private School Strategy Eyed

WXFORD, Miss. (AP) — A pro-segregation group is circulating a pamphlet proposing the shutdown of any state school the federal government "seizes by force"—then reopening it along private school lines.

The proposal by the Citizens Council of Jackson, Miss., came as John Frazier, 21-year-old Greenville Negro, announced he would apply for enrollment at the University of Southern Mississippi in January. The state-operated university is in Hattiesburg.

The University of Mississippi currently is the only state supported school in Mississippi which has been desegregated. James H. Meredith, a 29-year-old Negro, spent his sixth week of classes at Ole Miss today.

Four students were expelled from Ole Miss Saturday on charges stemming from demonstrations against Meredith, the university announced.

Mexico was awarded the land by arbitration in 1911. However, the U.S. member of the arbitration board dissented, saying no one could determine the location of the original bed of the river. There the matter rested.

Even now, no one can determine the original size of El Chamizal. The old river bed is built up with homes, businesses and streets. Estimates of the size range from 400 to 650 acres.

Once outright purchase or exchange are rejected, authorities face an extremely touchy problem involving 22,000 people by Calleros' estimate.

That is the population of El Chamizal. And although some day the issue may affect them very personally, the residents appear unworried.

Police Check 29 Accidents During October

Circleville Police investigated 29 accidents during October, bringing the yearly total to 271.

Nine injuries were incurred in the October crashes. None was serious.

Two of the accidents involved pedestrians. One involved a bicycle.

The report showed 65 adult arrests for the month, an increase over September. Officers said the surge in arrests was due to the Pumpkin Show. There were nine juvenile arrests.

OFFICERS investigated four burglaries for the month. The most serious was at the Circle Auto Parts, S. Court St., where spark plugs valued at $1,079 were taken.

Four grand larceny and 16 petit larceny cases were investigated. During Pumpkin Show officers received approximately 400 complaints, well above the monthly average of 200.

Lost keys, billfolds and glasses are being held at police headquarters. Owners may claim these articles by making proper identification.

Boy, 9, Admits Starting Cincy Stockyards Fire

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fire department arson probes have found a 9-year-old boy who they say admitted he was responsible for the $50,000 Cincinnati Union Stockyards fire Oct. 27.

Fire Marshal Ralph Strope said the boy lighted a match "just for fun", and straw was ignited. The boy said he became panicky when he couldn't stamp out the blaze and ran home.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is the day the Russians were going to be nice about. Then everything got mixed up, including the Russians, and the day turned out nicer than they seemed to have in mind.

For four years they had been trying to get the Allies out of Berlin and even put up a wall to keep them out of half of it. Then on Sept. 13 they stuck their neck out. They issued a statement. It was a beaut.

They suggested Americans get so worked up over politics they were willing to wait until after Election Day for a showdown on Berlin. But, to show how earnest they were, they said they should not delay the showdown indefinitely.

This would have been real neighborly if they had just stopped there. And they would have been happier right now if they had stopped. But they threw in some stuff on Cuba.

First, they warned the United States that an attack on Cuba would be the beginning of a war that might turn into a world nuclear war.

Second, they said they were sending weapons to Cuba but (a) they were not establishing a base there and (b) the weapons were purely defensive.

Third, they added a final touch which must make them wish now they had never thought of it. They said they didn't have to put missiles in Cuba because the missiles in Russia could reach anywhere.

Then the egg broke about a month later.

The United States discovered the Russians were building Cuban missile bases which weren't defensive; President Kennedy warned the Russians to break up the bases and get the missiles out; and the Russians, who had lied about the missiles right up to the last, backed down in the face of a possible American attack on Cuba and began demolishing the bases.

All of which brings the story back—in very ominous fashion—to what looked on Sept. 13 like a very decent Soviet gesture in offering to delay a Berlin settlement until after Election Day.

By delaying the showdown until sometime later in November or December—provided Cuban bases hadn't been discovered—the Russians would have had time to get their missiles in place and cocked toward America.

Then, in a showdown on Berlin later this year if the United States still balked at a settlement, Premier Khrushchev could have unveiled the plot he had been cooking up with missiles right against the American temple.

He could have told the United States it was too late to get tough about Berlin because the long-range Soviet missiles in Russia and the shorter-range ones in Cuba could demolish the United States.

By James Marlow

The United States, faced with that, would have been in a desperate box. But it didn't work out that way.

Now it's doubtful the Russians—who admitted they were lying when they meekly agreed to take back missiles which they said weren't there—will try for a Berlin crisis this year.

So Election Day in the United States turned out to be a nice day after all.

Ohio Governor Race To Draw Top Interest

DiSalle concluded his reelection campaign with a television question and answer broadcast from stations here and in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo and Zanesville. He planned to await returns at the Governor's Mansion. The governor voted in his hometown of Toledo by absentee ballot Oct. 22. Mrs. DiSalle voted there the previous day.

Rhodes turned out early to vote here and planned to await returns at home with his family. He issued a pre-election statement describing his campaign as positive and constructive and urging Ohioans to vote their convictions.

Creating considerable impact on the campaign in its closing days were two grand jury investigations. One of them, delving into complaints by a distiller that he paid to have his bourbon listed for sale in state liquor stores, is in recess until after election.

The other grand jury reported no basis for indictments on charges by DiSalle of fraud in Rhodes' office. The governor accused the auditor of charging local subdivisions rent for adding machines used by state examiners in auditing their books. Two accounting firms, in addition to the jury, reported finding no evidence of fraud, but DiSalle, an attorney, said his own investigation would continue regardless of the election.

An important facet of the election is control of the 1963 General Assembly. All 137 House seats will be filled for two-year terms. Republicans expect to retain control but are not so sure about the Senate. In the upper house, 19 of 33 seats will be filled. Holdovers occupy the other 14 because of staggered, four-year terms in the Senate.

All state officials, except judicial, will be elected simultaneously to four-year terms for the first time since Ohio shifted from two-year terms. The chief justice and two Ohio Supreme Court judges will be elected to six-year terms.

An unusual contest pits Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant, Lakewood Democrat, against Judge Kingsley A. Taft, Columbus Republican elected two years ago to a six-year term. Weygant has served as chief justice since 1933.

Supreme Court candidates were nominated in partisan primaries but run on non-partisan ballots in the November election.

Worthless Piece of Land Causes U.S.-Mexican Fuss

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—A little bit of land along the Rio Grande is giving an oversized headache to the United States and Mexico.

Mexican President Adolfo Lopez Mateos discussed the piece of land a few months ago with President Kennedy. The several hundred acres of territory is American—by virtue of a capricious turn the Rio Grande took nearly 60 years ago. Mexico wants the area back.

It was reported in Washington recently that a settlement in the long standing boundary dispute is a distinct possibility before the end of the year.

The dispute had its origins back when the United States was occupying itself with wrapping up the Civil War. At the time, the luckless Maximilian was seeking to keep the slippery crown of Mexico on his head.

In 1864, the Rio Grande escaped its banks and roamed freely in Mexico. Then the river returned to its bed. But it didn't return to the exact spot it left. It re-entered a little below its exit and left a small bit of and on the United States side which shortly before had been in Mexico.

This was in a part of the coun-

CHS Key Club Members at Workshop

Members of the Circleville High School Key Club attended the annual Ohio District Key Club Workshop held in the Student Union at Ohio State University, Columbus.

This meeting served as a training session for Key Club leaders and members. It was designed to stimulate service among all Key Clubs and to bring together members within the district to discuss problems and solutions.

Eddie Wright, president of the Key Club and Lt. Governor of this area, served as chairman of the session for members and committee chairmen. This was the largest group at the workshop and one of the most vital.

During the afternoon business session, Wright was re-installed as Lt. Governor of the 10W Division of the Key Club.

Circleville Key Clubbers attending included Steve Weiler, George Grigg, Peter Wills, Eddie Wright, Dick Crabie, Jerry Shasteen, Fred Riekey, John Hatcher, Bill Bennett, Dick Patrick, Wayne Werner, Handy Hatfield, Eddie Evans and Doug Kaiser.

The boys were accompanied by Roscoe Warren, chairman of the Kiwanis Key Club committee, Stan Spring, CHS Key Club adviser, and David Fullen, member of the Kiwanis Key Club committee.

try where land was almost worthless.

"It was just weeds and brush and a few trees. There wasn't a house there," says Cleofas Calleros, noted El Paso historian and an expert on this land segment.

The area eventually gained a name: El Chamizal — from the Spanish word for brush.

El Paso expanded and eventually people built houses there.

Now a very vocal but unorganized group in Mexico clamors for its return to Mexico. Members of the group consider El Chamizal a point of national honor.

The two presidents discussed the matter when Kennedy visited Mexico last spring. On Sept. 1, Lopez Mateos said in his state of the nation speech that "nothing would contribute more to relations between the United States and Mexico than a settlement of the El Chamizal problem."

The presidents turned the touchy problem over to administrative aides.

Considering that the countries are on good terms and individuals on the border get along well, several solutions are offered frequently by citizens on both sides of the Rio Grande.

One would be to turn the area over to Mexico. Another would give Mexico land somewhere else of about the same size. A third is purchase of the land from Mexico.

Lopez Mateos, speaking through Foreign Minister Manuel Tello, said last summer that purchase or exchange of land would be unsatisfactory.

Private School Strategy Eyed

WXFORD, Miss. (AP) — A pro-segregation group is circulating a pamphlet proposing the shutdown of any state school the federal government "seizes by force"—then reopening it along private school lines.

The proposal by the Citizens Council of Jackson, Miss., came as John Frazier, 21-year-old Greenville Negro, announced he would apply for enrollment at the University of Southern Mississippi in January. The state-operated university is in Hattiesburg.

The University of Mississippi currently is the only state supported school in Mississippi which has been desegregated. James H. Meredith, a 29-year-old Negro, spent his sixth week of classes at Ole Miss today.

Four students were expelled from Ole Miss Saturday on charges stemming from demonstrations against Meredith, the university announced.

Mexico was awarded the land by arbitration in 1911. However, the U.S. member of the arbitration board dissented, saying no one could determine the location of the original bed of the river. There the matter rested.

Even now, no one can determine the original size of El Chamizal. The old river bed is built up with homes, businesses and streets. Estimates of the size range from 400 to 650 acres.

Once outright purchase or exchange are rejected, authorities face an extremely touchy problem involving 22,000 people by Calleros' estimate.

That is the population of El Chamizal. And although some day the issue may affect them very personally, the residents appear unworried.

Police Check 29 Accidents During October

Circleville Police investigated 29 accidents during October, bringing the yearly total to 271.

Nine injuries were incurred in the October crashes. None was serious.

Two of the accidents involved pedestrians. One involved a bicycle.

The report showed 65 adult arrests for the month, an increase over September. Officers said the surge in arrests was due to the Pumpkin Show. There were nine juvenile arrests.

OFFICERS investigated four burglaries for the month. The most serious was at the Circle Auto Parts, S. Court St., where spark plugs valued at $1,079 were taken.

Four grand larceny and 16 petit larceny cases were investigated.

During Pumpkin Show officers received approximately 400 complaints, well above the monthly average of 200.

Lost keys, billfolds and glasses are being held at police headquarters. Owners may claim these articles by making proper identification.

Boy, 9, Admits Starting Cincy Stockyards Fire

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fire department arson probes have found a 9-year-old boy who they say admitted he was responsible for the $50,000 Cincinnati Union Stockyards fire Oct. 27.

Fire Marshal Ralph Strope said the boy lighted a match "just for fun", and straw was ignited. The boy said he became panicky when he couldn't stamp out the blaze and ran home.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is the day the Russians were going to be nice about. Then everything got mixed up, including the Russians, and the day turned out nicer than they seemed to have in mind.

For four years they had been trying to get the Allies out of Berlin and even put up a wall to keep them out of half of it. Then on Sept. 13 they stuck their neck out. They issued a statement. It was a beaut.

They suggested Americans get so worked up over politics they were willing to wait until after Election Day for a showdown on Berlin. But, to show how earnest they were, they said they should not delay the showdown indefinitely.

This would have been real neighborly if they had just stopped there. And they would have been happier right now if they had stopped. But they threw in some stuff on Cuba.

First, they warned the United States that an attack on Cuba would be the beginning of a war that might turn into a world nuclear war.

Second, they said they were sending weapons to Cuba but (a) they were not establishing a base there and (b) the weapons were purely defensive.

Third, they added a final touch which must make them wish now they had never thought of it. They said they didn't have to put missiles in Cuba because the missiles in Russia could reach anywhere.

Then the egg broke about a month later.

The United States discovered the Russians were building Cuban missile bases which weren't defensive. President Kennedy warned the Russians to break up the bases and get the missiles out; and the Russians, who had lied about the missiles right up to the last, backed down in the face of a possible American attack on Cuba and began demolishing the bases.

All of which brings the story back—in very ominous fashion—to what looked on Sept. 13 like a very decent Soviet gesture in offering to delay a Berlin settlement until after Election Day.

Mrs. Boggs Addresses Club

Mrs. Charles Boggs, one of the guidance teachers at Circleville High School, was guest speaker when the Monday Club met in the library trustees room of Memorial Hall Monday evening.

She used as her topic, "The Guidance Program at Circleville High School," and said in part, "That vocational guidance got its start in 1908 in Boston. The U. S. Office of Education established the Department of Vocational and Guidance Service in 1938. World War II caused impetus to the development of guidance, especially in the realm of testing and job analysis."

In 1958 the National Defense Education Act was passed. Section 5A applies to guidance. Special guidance courses under this act have been given since then in our state supported colleges. Under this section, Mrs. Boggs said, the federal government also subsidizes a certain percent of the advancement of guidance programs in the states and thence in the local schools."

Mrs. Boggs stated that, in 1959 organized guidance services were established at Circleville High School. They have an inventory service where they keep a cumulative record of each student's progress: grades, attendance, conduct, effort, health, family situation, intelligence and achievement test scores, extra-curricular activities, and future plans. They require an orientation course in the freshman year in school rules and regulations, scheduling for the four years, study methods and occupational information sources. They arrange interviews with college representatives who contact them about prospective students.

They also receive calls and do some job referral in this area. Under counseling service they aim for privacy, trust and guidance, not discipline. The emphasis is on self-help not diagnosis. They help the student in filling out an application for college, nurses training, technical school or job. Generally they have a list of available part-time workers, Mrs. Boggs said.

The guidance department consists of Richard Fisher, head of guidance; James Shaw, who handles 8th grade guidance; Mrs. Annette Will, college guidance; Paul Reiss and Mrs. Boggs.

Guidance means guiding a student to self-help and to resources for help. The most used resources for the troubled are Mrs. Pat Yates, child accountant officer; Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick, school health nurse; Robert Wellington, speech therapist and Ralph Starkey, juvenile officer.

Guidance occurs wherever and whenever a teacher or other adult recognizes a special need in a student and seeks help for that student. It occurs whenever a student recognizes a need in himself for counseling in any area and seeks help.

Mrs. Boggs concluded by quoting from a bulletin from the State Dept. of Mental Health. "The three basic steps to mental health are: feel good about yourself; feel good about others; and be able to cope with most of your problems."

The guidance department hopes to help some on the road to this goal.

Unit Conducts Guest Night

Members of the Child Culture League held annual Guest Night recently in the basement of the Presbyterian Church. Guests present were Mrs. Harold Strawser, Mrs. Bob Miller, Mrs. Richard Herkless, Mrs. Ernest Ankrom, Mrs. Thomas Downs, Mrs. Paul Helwagen and Ella Mae Neff.

Mrs. John Jenkins, president, explained the principles and purposes of the club to the guests.

Mrs. Leo Black, program chairman, introduced members of the Circleville Drama Club who presented the program.

James Stewart told something of each member's background as he introduced this talented group. Karen Sampson did a pantomime entitled, "A Visit to the Hospital." Mike Lorentz presented, "Just Before Christmas," and Jane Kuller did a skit from "South Pacific."

The group then gave several versions of "The Three Bears" with Nancy Yates as mama bear, Jim Stewart as papa bear, Mike Lorentz as baby bear, and Karen Sampson as Goldie. The first version was as it would have been done by Shakespeare, the second as done in King James version of the Bible, the third as done by Time magazine, and the fourth as told by Uncle Remus. Nancy Yates portrayed Uncle Remus.

Mrs. Black, Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Marvin Widmar served refreshments.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Richard Davis with Mrs. Clarence Hancher Jr. as co-hostess. There will be a gift exchange.

Army Hints It Could OK Bowl Offer

NEW YORK (AP)—After years of shunning any and all forms of post-season play, an Army football team may go to a bowl for the first time at the end of this season.

Coach Paul Dietzel, in revealing such a possibility Monday in a talk before the New York Football Writers, said there were two big "ifs."

"The academy's stand on the matter is unchanged," said the young mentor who, in his first year as head coach, has revived the football fortunes at West Point. "I have been told the authorities would agree to a bowl appearance on two conditions.

"First, Army must have a team that would do the academy credit. "Second, the trip must be made without inconvenience to the players or the Academy.

"Personally," Dietzel added, "I'd like a third condition of my own. I'd want the players to want to play in a bowl game. It should be a reward for a team, not a chore."

Army has a record of six victories and one defeat, losing only to Michigan. Sponsors of the Orange and Gator bowls are reported eager to get Army's acceptance. The Cadets have turned down many bids in the past but judging from Dietzel's talk the West Point officials' views regarding a bowl game appear to be liberalized.

Patterson Seeks Liston Title Shot

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson, apparently ready to emerge from a six-weeks hibernation, wants to fight Sonny Liston again and will ask New York to grant the heavyweight champion a license to box in the state.

This was disclosed today by promoter Tom Bolan. The vice president of Championship Sports Inc. said he had talked with Patterson Monday and the former champion told him he is anxious to fight Liston "as soon as possible."

"Patterson told me he plans to begin training next week in Highland Mills, N.Y.," said Bolan. "He is very anxious for the return match, and wants it to be held in New York."

Mummey To Miss OSU-Indiana Game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State quarterback John Mummey, the Buckeyes' leading ground gainer and point producer, will be out of the coming Indiana game, coach Woody Hayes says. He also predicts several other battered Buckeds may not be up to par.

The 28-14 loss at Iowa City last week wasn't the only beating Ohio State took. Hayes now has nearly as many players on the injured list as he has on the field.

Mummey, before being hurt early in the Iowa fray, had gained 370 yards and scored 24 points in the five other Ohio State games.

9 Shots Whisky Kill Ex-Marine

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—Deputy coroner Robert G. Derue ruled today that alcohol poisoning caused the death of a 24-year-old ex-Marine who downed nine shots in 45 minutes.

The victim, Normal Shroyer of Sandusky, had been drinking in a tavern Saturday night with his wife and another couple. He was involved in a fight at the tavern and later argued with his wife, who left to return home. After Shroyer's wife left, the friend said, Shroyer downed nine shots of whisky in 45 minutes.

Toledo '11' Voted No. 1 Ohio Rating

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio sports writers took advantage of this election day to vote a brand new team—Toledo Central Catholic—into first place in the Associated Press high school football poll.

And if coach Tom McHugh's Fighting Irish can hang on for one more week they'll become the first team outside of Northeastern Ohio to take the state championship.

The Circleville High School football Tigers dropped from ninth to 11th in the Associated Press grid poll this week.

The Tigers were given 80 points by Ohio sports writers. They received four first place votes, the same as last week, but their total was 30 points less.

Circleville will be going after its 15th consecutive win when they host Franklin Heights Friday. They have already won the South Central Ohio League Championship and are 9-0-0 for the season.

Miami Trace received 22 points in the balloting and Wilmington 16.

Teays Valley was given 14 points after ending the season with a 20-6 win over Jonathan Alder last Friday.

Ohio to take the state championship and the Rutgers Hall of Fame trophy.

The winner of next week's poll, following the Nov. 9-10 games, will be awarded the championship. Since the poll was inaugurated in 1947, it has been won by Massillon nine times, Canton McKinley twice, and once each by Barborton, Cleveland Benedictine, Alliance and Niles McKinley—all from the upper right-hand corner of the state.

But with Lima Senior beating Alliance, Fremont upsetting Massillon, Toledo Devilbiss turning back Alliance and Toledo Central Catholic defeating Steubenville's Big Red 20-12, the balance appears to be shifting to the West.

Coach Ray Hoyman's Big Red was in fifth place, and a lot of folk figured it could be the best of the Buckeye brigade, until it ran into McHugh's team Friday.

Hoyman, who saw his team absorb its first setback said: "So far as I'm concerned, we lost to the state champions. And to date we are the second best." McHugh chimed in with: "I rate Central Catholic and Steubenville right at the top. And Steubenville's Harry Wilson (1961 All-Ohio) is the finest high school halfback I've seen."

Circleville, although winning its 14th straight 14-6 over undefeated Miami Trace, fell from the top 10. Cleveland St. Ignatus moved in, deadlocking Steubenville for ninth.

Warren Harding, despite a 42-6 win over Sharon, Pa., dropped from third to fourth place, trading places with Lorain Admiral King which trimmed Marion Harding 44-6.

Two defeated teams in the list, Toledo Devilbiss and Steubenville, suffered their losses at the hands of Central Catholic. The other, Middletown, lost to Springfield South via the conversion route.

Steubenville, loser only to Central Catholic, and Steubenville Central, beaten only by Niles, tangle this week for the city title. Youngstown Cardinal Mooney clinched a tie for the city crown by beating North 38-6. The latter is winless in 45 straight games.

Bowling Green, Ohio U in Top MAC Tilt

For the sixth time in 10 years, the Ohio University and Bowling Green football game will be the big decider in the Mid-American Conference championship.

Bowling Green, paced by Asa Elsea, Don Lisbon and Jay Cunningham, is the league's offensive leader with 155 points and 335 yard game average.

Cunningham is the leading conference scorer with 36 points. Don Lisbon is third in the league with 30.

Elsea, a former Circleville star, has kicked 18 points after touchdowns and three field goals for 27 points. He is fourth in the loop scoring race.

The Bobcats will bring a perfect 4-0 MAC record to BG. Miami kicked a pair of field goals in the only scoring blemish on the defensive-minded Athens Club.

The last three years these two teams' battles have really been the cliff-hangers of the series. The Falcons copped the 1959 crown with a come-from-behind, 13-9, victory.

The next year the Bobcats won not only the MAC but the small-college championship on a 14-7 win, and then last year the Falcons again came from behind for a 7-6 win and then watched Ohio and Western Michigan tie the following week to insure the GeeGees another crown.

In 1953 Ohio had to beat the Falcons to insure the championship and did so, 22-14. Bowling Green had to have a must win in 1956 and did it, 41-27.

Some College Cagers Shun Fixer's Cash

NEW YORK (AP)—Aaron Wagman, admitted briber of basketball players, testified Monday that he was not always successful in his attempts to get collegians to dump games.

Wagman was the first prosecution witness in the trial of Jacob L. (Jack) Molinas, being tried in State Supreme Court on charges of bribing a Bowling Green, Ohio, basketball player, and conspiracy and subornation of perjury.

Wagman, 28, of the Bronx, said he began his arrangement with Molinas, former Columbia University basketball player, in November 1957. Also present at the meeting, Wagman, said, were Joseph Hacken and Joseph Green.

Hacken, 42, has had a long series of gambling arrests. Green, 36, is a friend of Wagman's.

Wagman said he and Green arranged to have Richard Hoffman, 25, of Columbia, S. C., a guard, dump a University of South Carolina game with the University of Georgia at the Gator Bowl tournament in Jacksonville, Fla. Dec. 29, 1957.

Wagman told of unsuccessful attempts to bribe a Brown University player and also a University of Alabama player.

The trial is being heard by Justice Joseph A. Sarafite and a jury of eight men and four women.

Brown Says Ryan To Be Better QB

CLEVELAND (AP)—Coach Paul Brown says he is confident that Frank Ryan will settle down and get better in his job as quarterback for the Cleveland Browns.

"I told Frank to get his nose up in the air and start thinking of the next one," the coach said Monday night as preparations were started for the return game with the Redskins in Washington Sunday.

Ryan was unhappy with his performance against the Philadelphia Eagles here Sunday when he made his first start as a replacement for injured Jim Ninowski, but Brown wasn't critical of his new quarterback.

In its first three football games this season, Mississippi's Rebels caged a Tiger (Memphis State, 21-7), a Wildcat (Kentucky, 14-0) and a Cougar (Houston, 40-7).

Army Hints It Could OK Bowl Offer

NEW YORK (AP)—After years of shunning any and all forms of post-season play, an Army football team may go to a bowl for the first time at the end of this season.

Coach Paul Dietzel, in revealing such a possibility Monday in a talk before the New York Football Writers, said there were two big "ifs."

"The academy's stand on the matter is unchanged," said the young mentor who, in his first year as head coach, has revived the football fortunes at West Point. "I have been told the authorities would agree to a bowl appearance on two conditions.

"First, Army must have a team that would do the academy credit. "Second, the trip must be made without inconvenience to the players or the Academy."

"Personally," Dietzel added, "I'd like a third condition of my own. I'd want the players to want to play in a bowl game. It should be a reward for a team, not a chore."

Army has a record of six victories and one defeat, losing only to Michigan. Sponsors of the Orange and Gator bowls are reported eager to get Army's acceptance. The Cadets have turned down many bids in the past but judging from Dietzel's talk the West Point officials' views regarding a bowl game appear to be liberalized.

Patterson Seeks Liston Title Shot

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson, apparently ready to emerge from a six-week hibernation, wants to fight Sonny Liston again and will ask New York to grant the heavyweight champion a license to box in the state.

This was disclosed today by promoter Tom Bolan. The vice president of Championship Sports Inc. said he had talked with Patterson Monday and the former champion told him he is anxious to fight Liston "as soon as possible."

"Patterson told me he plans to begin training next week in Highland Mills, N.Y.," said Bolan. "He is very anxious for the return match, and wants it to be held in New York."

Mummy To Miss OSU-Indiana Game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State quarterback John Mummy, the Buckeyes' leading ground gainer and point producer, will be out of the coming Indiana game, coach Woody Hayes says. He also predicts several other battered Bucks may not be up to par.

The 28-14 loss at Iowa City last week wasn't the only beating Ohio State took. Hayes now has nearly as many players on the injured list as he has on the field. Mummy, before being hurt early in the Iowa fray, had gained 370 yards and scored 24 points in the five other Ohio State games.

9 Shots Whisky Kill Ex-Marine

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—Deputy coroner Robert G. Derue ruled today that alcohol poisoning caused the death of a 24-year-old ex-Marine who drowned nine shots in 45 minutes.

The victim, Normal Shroyer of Sandusky, had been drinking in a tavern Saturday night with his wife and another couple. He was involved in a fight at the tavern and later argued with his wife, who left to return home. After Shroyer's wife left, the friend said, Shroyer downed nine shots of whisky in 45 minutes.

Toledo '11' Voted No. 1 Ohio Rating

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio sports writers took advantage of this election day to vote a brand new team—Toledo Central Catholic—into first place in the Associated Press high school football poll.

And if coach Tom McHugh's Fighting Irish can hang on for one more week they'll become the first team outside of Northeastern Ohio to win the title.

The Circleville High School football Tigers dropped from ninth to 11th in the Associated Press grid poll this week.

The Tigers were given 80 points by Ohio sports writers. They received four first place votes, the same as last week, but their total was 30 points less.

Circleville will be going after its 15th consecutive win when they host Franklin Heights Friday. They have already won the South Central Ohio League Championship and are 9-0-0 for the season.

Miami Trace received 22 points in the balloting and Wilmington 16.

Teays Valley was given 14 points after ending the season with a 20-6 win over Jonathan Alder last Friday.

Ohio to take the state championship and the Rutgers Hall of Fame trophy.

The winner of next week's poll, following the Nov. 9-10 games, will be awarded the championship. Since the poll was inaugurated in 1947, it has been won by Massillon nine times, Canton McKinley twice, and once each by Barberton, Cleveland Benedictine, Alliance and Niles McKinley—all from the upper right-hand corner of the state.

But with Lima Senior beating Alliance, Fremont Ross upsetting Massillon, Toledo Devilbiss turning back Alliance and Toledo Central Catholic defeating Steubenville's Big Red 20-12, the balance appears to be shifting to the West.

Coach Ray Hoyman's Big Red was in fifth place, and a lot of folk figured it could be the best of the Buckeye brigade, until it ran into McHugh's team Friday.

Hoyman, who saw his team absorb its first setback said: "So far as I'm concerned, we lost to the state champions. And to date we are the second best." McHugh chimed in with: "I rate Central Catholic and

Bowling Green, Ohio U in Top MAC Tilt

For the sixth time in 10 years, the Ohio University and Bowling Green football game will be the big decider in the Mid-American Conference championship.

Bowling Green, paced by Asa Elsea, Don Lisbon and Jay Cunningham, is the league's offensive leader with 155 points and 335 yard game average.

Cunningham is the leading conference scorer with 36 points. Don Lisbon is third in the league with 30.

Elsea, a former Circleville star, has kicked 18 points after touchdowns and three field goals for 27 points. He is fourth in the loop scoring race.

The Bobcats will bring a perfect 4-0 MAC record to BG. Miami kicked a pair of field goals in the only scoring blemish on the defensive-minded Athens Club.

The last three years these two teams' battles have really been the cliff-hangers of the series. The Falcons copped the 1959 crown with a come-from-behind, 13-9, victory.

The next year the Bobcats won not only the MAC but the small-college championship on a 14-7 win, and then last year the Falcons again came from behind for a 7-6 win and then watched Ohio and Western Michigan tie the following week to insure the GeeGees another crown.

In 1953 Ohio had to beat the Falcons to insure the championship and did so, 22-14. Bowling Green had to have a must win in 1956 and did it, 41-27.

200 Basketball Coaches Expected in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of Cincinnati says more than 200 high school basketball coaches are expected for a day-long coaching clinic Saturday.

The speakers include coach Ed Jucker of Cincinnati; coach Tom Blackburn of Dayton; coach Julius Ritter of Madison, Ind.; and Oscar Robertson and Jack Twyman of the Cincinnati Royals.

The Cleveland Indians drew more fans on the road than at home in 1962. Home attendance was 716,076. On the road they drew 1,116,726.

Non-Gridders Eye Second Cage Week

The Basketball season continues with a full slate of games on tap this weekend for the schools that do not have football teams.

Williamsport, winning its opener 73-63 from Kingston last week, plays both Friday and Saturday nights. Friday the Deers travel to Huntington and Saturday they host Buckskin.

The Darby Trojans, after a 65-50 initial win over Ohio Deaf, play Friday at Kingston. Ned Reichelderfer's cagers do not have a Saturday tilt scheduled.

Kingston travels to Leesburg-Fairfield on Saturday.

Monroe continues the cage season with a road game at Ohio Deaf Saturday. The Indians lost last week to Buckskin, 65-38.

Jackson High School's cagers play their second game of the season Friday, hosting Buckskin. The Wildcats, fielding an inexperienced team, opened the season with a 91-69 loss to a rugged Clarkburg quintet.

High schools that fielded football teams will not open the cage season until after Nov. 20. They were permitted to start practice Nov. 1.

Some College Cagers Shun Fixer's Cash

NEW YORK (AP) — Aaron Wagman, admitted briber of basketball players, testified Monday that he was not always successful in his attempts to get collegians to dump games.

Wagman was the first prosecution witness in the trial of Jacob L. (Jack) Molinas, being tried in State Supreme Court on charges of bribing a Bowling Green, Ohio, basketball player, and conspiracy and subornation of perjury.

Wagman, 28, of the Bronx, said he began his arrangement with Molinas, former Columbia University basketball player, in November 1957. Also present at the meeting, Wagman, said, were Joseph Hacken and Joseph Green.

Hacken, 42, has had a long series of gambling arrests. Green, 36, is a friend of Wagman's. Wagman said he and Green arranged to have Richard Hoffman, 25, of Columbia, S. C., a guard, dump a University of South Carolina game with the University of Georgia at the 'Gator Bowl tournament in Jacksonville, Fla. Dec. 29, 1957.

Wagman told of unsuccessful attempts to bribe a Brown University player and also a University of Alabama player.

The trial is being heard by Justice Joseph A. Sarafite and a jury of eight men and four women.

Brown Says Ryan To Be Better QB

CLEVELAND (AP) — Coach Paul Brown says he is confident that Frank Ryan will settle down and get better in his job as quarterback for the Cleveland Browns.

"I told Frank to get his nose up in the air and start thinking of the next one," the coach said Monday night as preparations were started for the return game with the Redskins in Washington Sunday.

Ryan was unhappy with his performance against the Philadelphia Eagles here Sunday when he made his first start as a replacement for injured Jim Nowinski, but Brown wasn't critical of his new quarterback.

In its first three football games this season, Mississippi's Rebels caged a Tiger (Memphis State, 21-7), a Wildcat (Kentucky, 14-0) and a Cougar (Houston, 40-7).

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — During a recent half-hour of fun-loving "I've Got a Secret," host Garry Moore was setting up one of the complicated practical jokes that are a feature of the show, and ordered some of the panel members off stage and into what is presumably a sound-proof room.

"Does Henry have to go with Betsy and I?" asked Bess Myerson, and then, because no one was paying attention amid all the hubbub, she repeated the question.

Of all the grammatical bloops studding ad lib television, that "I-me" confusion seems to be the most prevalent. In fact, I even heard former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, in a news show, thanking a crowd on behalf of "Mrs. Eisenhower and I."

Some performers obviously are skittish about the use of the words, and when in doubt, substitute "myself"—Ed Sullivan being a notable practitioner of the device. Most language experts decree that usage is the test of correctness—and usage has long since put an approval stamp of such phrases as "Who Do You Trust?" and "like a cigarette should."

Presumably, it won't be long before television usage stamps the seal on pronunciation-of "pick-sher" for picture, which seems to be the usual way announcers say the word, and "lurgy" for luxury, which seems to pop into every cosmetics commercial.

"Password," now that it is tucked into an early evening Sunday spot when the young viewers are around in numbers, is making a play for "family" attention by slipping in a pair of youthful contestants. But to do it, they have had to change the rules, now bringing in two or three sets of audience contestants—obviously they don't feel it wise to play the whole game with kiddies.

Recommended tonight: Election returns, ABC, CBS, NBC—7:30 (EST) until returns are in (ABC starts coverage at 7).

Northwestern, Southern Cal Top Grid Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The rash of weekend upsets caused the biggest shakeup of the year today in the college football rankings but Northwestern clung to the No. 1 position and found a potential Rose Bowl rival, Southern California, breathing down its neck.

Missouri, Wisconsin and Minnesota moved into the top ten, replacing Michigan State, Washington and Auburn, although not in the same spots. The order underwent considerable juggling.

Behind Northwestern and Southern California, The Associated Press' weekly poll placed Alabama, Mississippi, Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, Wisconsin, Louisiana State, and Minnesota.

Northwestern, which barely squeezed past Indiana 26-21 on a late rally, didn't command the big block of first-place votes snatched on it a week ago.

The Wildcats received 24 of the No. 1 ballots—less than half of the 49 cast by a special panel of sports writers and broadcasters—with 9 each going to Alabama and Mississippi, 6 to Southern Cal and 1 to Texas. Southern Cal, 14-0 winner over Washington, had strong support for the second, third and fourth slots.

Points are computed on the basis of ten for a first-place vote, nine for second, etc. Northwestern had 442 points compared with 409 for the Big Six conference power house.

Five members of the San Francisco Warriors still live in Philadelphia in the off season. They played last the Philadelphia Warriors last season.

The Los Angeles Angels won 16 more games in 1962 than in 1961, their first campaign in the American League. In 1962 they were 86-76 as compared with 70-91 in 1961.

STARR-ING ROLE—Best pass completion percentage in the National Football League is held by Bart Starr (above), the Green Bay quarterback. Starr ranks second to Eddie LeBaron of the Dallas team in yards gained on passes.

Palmer, Snead Head U.S. Team

Canada Cup Tourney Slated in Argentina

SAN ISIDRO, Argentina (AP)—Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead, expected to carry the United States to its third straight title, open serious practice today for the 10th annual Canada Cup golf competition.

Palmer flew in late Monday from Miami to join the veteran Snead, who arrived a day earlier and marched right out to fire a 3-under-par 67 in a practice round on the 6,746-yard, par 70 Red course where the international tournament opens Thursday.

Palmer said he had gained 11 pounds and was up to 180 after a three-week vacation during which he played little golf.

"That's too much weight for me," said the LaBroke, Pa., power hitter who generally is considered the world's best golfer. "But a couple practice rounds ought to get me in shape."

Palmer said he was concerned about his putting, shaky the last few months, and Snead was nursing a sore left foot. Otherwise, the favored Americans seemed about ready for the four-day, 72-hole test against two-man teams from 33 other countries.

Snead won the individual title last year in Puerto Rico, and paired with Jimmy Demaret for the team championship after Palmer was refused permission to compete because of previous PGA commitments at home.

Snead and Palmer had teamed to win the 1960 title in Dublin. The top threats of the Americans here figure to be the South African team of Gary Player and Denis Hutchinson; the Australian twosome of Kel Nagle and Peter Thomson, and the Argentine team of Roberto de Vicenzo and Fidel de Luca.

Player, the U.S. PGA champion, is due today from Australia, where he won the Australian Open last weekend. Nagle and Thomson are coming with him.

Block Movie Booking Illegal

High Court Affirms Previous Decision

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has affirmed an order barring six distributors of motion pictures from block booking in selling and licensing their films to television stations.

The order was issued by U.S. Dist. Judge Archie O. Dawson in New York who ruled that some block booking deals violated the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

Justice Arthur J. Goldberg delivered the Supreme Court's main opinion, his first since he took his seat on the high tribunal on Oct. 1. It also was the first opinion to be handed down in the court's new term after the hearing of formal arguments.

All nine justices agreed that block booking practices violated the Sherman Act. But Justices Harlan and Stewart in a separate opinion said they disagreed with the majority holding that the case should be sent back to Judge Dawson to order additional relief as requested by the Justice Department. Harlan and Stewart said the court should not have concerned itself at all "with such comparatively trivial remedial glosses."

Goldberg's opinion declared that "the tie-in agreements" in the sale of old movies "are illegal and in violation of the act."

Block booking was described by the Justice Department as a practice of selling or licensing feature films in blocks or packages, with the booking of one movie conditioned upon the booking of one or more other features. The department said the practice resulted in television stations being obliged to take unwanted films as a condition to obtaining desired films.

The Supreme Court in a 1948 antitrust law decision condemned block booking of films for movie theaters.

Dawson's order applied to Lowe's Inc., C & C Super Corp., Screen Gems Inc., Associated Artists Productions Inc., National Tele-Film Associates Inc. and United Artists Corp.

Atlanta Youth Will Remember 'Smelly' Trick

A 17-year-old Atlanta youth probably will remember for several years a "smelly" Halloween stunt.

The prankster placed a dead skunk on the front porch of the Benton Patterson residence, Atlanta, last week. Charges were filed, and the case came before Juvenile Judge Guy Cline last Friday.

The juvenile, who spent about four days in jail, was placed on probation for three years and sentenced to a 60-day work detail for the Atlanta community as a result of the prank.

Also appearing before Judge Cline on Friday was a 16-year-old on a traffic charge. Virgil Alan Hix, Route 1, Williamsport, had his operator's license restricted for 60 days for failing to signal for a left turn. He is to be permitted to drive to school and to work.

THE Juvenile Court heard a total of 27 cases during October. Here is the breakdown: Delinquency, 12; traffic, 11; dependent children, 1; and three cases of adults contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Mrs. Sweeney To Serve Here As Welcome Wagon Hostess

Mrs. Jacques Sweeney, 535 Ridgewood Drive, has returned home Wagon hostess which she completed a course of training preparing her for the position of Welcome Wagon hostess.

Mrs. Sweeney yesterday was presented with a late model compact car by the Lewis E. Cook Insurance Agency and Auto Club for use in her rounds as Welcome Wagon hostess. The vehicle will be put into immediate service.

Mrs. Sweeney is one of Welcome Wagon's approximately 6,000 hostesses who make about a million calls annually on families in the United States, Puerto Rico and Canada. This coverage embraces more than 2,000 cities.

These calls on behalf of Welcome Wagon's approximate 85,000 sponsors are made on such important family occasions as the birth of a baby, sixteenth birthdays, engagement announcements and when families move locally in a community and when they arrive in a locality as new residents.

CALLS ALSO are made on special occasions such as golden wedding anniversaries and other special family events. In Circleville, however, calls are made when new families arrive in the city, when the family has a new baby and when a couple is newly married.

Thomas W. Briggs is founder and president of the Welcome Wagon which is now in its 35th year.

Often referred to as a service which is "in the business of building friendships," Welcome Wagon's basic policy includes cooperation with all religious faiths, with worthwhile civic and social service groups; also participation in these activities which keep communities good places in which to live.

It is significant that Welcome Wagon has been cited for its volunteer service and achievement in community and nation by such organizations as the American Red Cross, The National Foundation, American Heart Assn., American Heritage Foundation, United States Treasury Department and many other such groups.

Welcome Wagon service is one not only of public relations but also meets a present day need in the field of human relations.

Mrs. Sweeney, on behalf of her sponsors in Circleville, will take religious and civic information to the families on whom she calls. With her basket of gifts, she will extend for those sponsors to the people of this community the old-fashioned hospitality for which Welcome Wagon is so well known.

Mrs. Sweeney knows this community. She is interested in its welfare and in its progress, including the well-being of its citizens. The former Welcome Wagon hostess was Mrs. Elizabeth Jones.

Block Movie Booking Illegal

High Court Affirms Previous Decision

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has affirmed an order barring six distributors of motion pictures from block booking in selling and licensing their films to television stations.

The order was issued by U.S. Dist. Judge Archie O. Dawson in New York who ruled that some block booking deals violated the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

Justice Arthur J. Goldberg delivered the Supreme Court's main opinion, his first since he took his seat on the high tribunal on Oct. 1. It also was the first opinion to be handed down in the court's new term after the hearing of formal arguments.

All nine justices agreed that block booking practices violated the Sherman Act. But Justices Harlan and Stewart in a separate opinion said they disagreed with the majority holding that the case should be sent back to Judge Dawson to order additional relief as requested by the Justice Department. Harlan and Stewart said the court should not have concerned itself at all "with such comparatively trivial remedial glosses."

Goldberg's opinion declared that "the tie-in agreements" in the sale of old movies "are illegal and in violation of the act."

Block booking was described by the Justice Department as a practice of selling or licensing feature films in blocks or packages, with the booking of one movie conditioned upon the booking of one or more other features. The department said the practice resulted in television stations being obliged to take unwanted films as a condition to obtaining desired films.

The Supreme Court in a 1948 antitrust law decision condemned block booking of films for movie theaters.

Dawson's order applied to Lowe's Inc., C & C Super Corp., Screen Gems Inc., Associated Artists Productions Inc., National Tele-Film Associates Inc. and United Artists Corp.

Atlanta Youth Will Remember 'Smelly' Trick

A 17-year-old Atlanta youth probably will remember for several years a "smelly" Halloween stunt.

The prankster placed a dead skunk on the front porch of the Benton Patterson residence, Atlanta, last week. Charges were filed, and the case came before Juvenile Judge Guy Cline last Friday.

The juvenile, who spent about four days in jail, was placed on probation for three years and sentenced to a 60-day work detail for the Atlanta community as a result of the prank.

Also appearing before Judge Cline on Friday was a 16-year-old on a traffic charge. Virgil Alan Hix, Route 1, Williamsport, had his operator's license restricted for 60 days for failing to signal for a left turn. He is to be permitted to drive to school and to work.

THE JUVENILE Court heard a total of 27 cases during October. Here is the breakdown: Delinquency, 12; traffic, 11; dependent children, 1; and three cases of adults contributing to the delinquency of minors.
